NEWSPAPER EDITORS from all over will soon attend the 41st annual meeting of the National Editorial Association. They will see many interesting things, from high mountains to fertile lands below the ocean's level, from movie wonders that came with this century to giant trees that were old and far up toward the sky when Caesar dragged Vercingetorix behind his chariot.

NOTHING THAT the editors see will impress them as will California's magnificent public schools, not even roads that are the finest in the world.

Those schools are roads to success and happiness for millions of young minds. No land in the world can compare with California in the beauty and magnificence of public schools, none excels California in teaching.

IN PASADENA, where this is written, there is a high school that for architectural beauty and for the beauty of the park around it would put to shame a majority of Europe's great palaces.

GREAT CITIES and small towns have schools that would amaze and humiliate other States in the Union.

Driving 600 miles through California within the last forty-eight hours, this writer saw in every

WORKER FALLS TO DEATH AT NEW STATLER HOTEL

Falling 30 feet from a staging on the new Statler Hotel, under construction in Park square, David Bowen, fifty-eight and married, of No. 40 Dearborn street, Roxbury, received injuries today which caused his death on the way to the hospital.

Bowen slipped while at work on the staging. He grasped an upright, but lost his hold and pitched to the ground. A police ambulance was called, but doctors at City Hospital found him dead on arrival there.

Bowen is the second man to meet his death while at work on the new hotel. The other was Joseph Phillips, twenty-one, of Stanford street, who was struck by a steel beam.

AUTO DRAGS CARRIAGE FOR BLOCK, CRUSHING BABY, INJURING TWO

An automobile, which suddenly veered from the road to the sidewalk, today crushed out the life of ten months' old Florence Seibelli of Malden street, Malden, as she lay in a baby carriage.

Two sisters, Rose, seven, and Annie, five, were knocked down and injured. The carriage was torn from the grasp of Rose.

The heavy machine dragged the carriage for almost a block. William A. Blunt of Summer street, Malden, driver of the car, told police that he swerved his machine from the road to avoid hitting the baby's 5-year-old sister Annie, as she was crossing Pearl street.

Blunt, held pending investigation, said little Annie darted into the path of his machine.

Both Annie and Rose were knocked down by the car and were treated for bruises at the Malden Hospital. Anthony Seibelli, is the father of the children.

Blunt, police say, lost his license in 1913, when it was revoked after his car killed Metropolitan Police Officer John W. Powers.

The license was restored to Blunt [illegible] that time he was a resident of Salem.

SOARING HEAT WAVE ROUTED BY EAST WIND

Just when today's temperatures gave promise of attaining yesterday's record mark of 78, Boston's east wind arrived and in little more than five minutes sent the mercury staggering from its perch at 74 to the 69 mark.

The wind shifted to the East just before 2 o'clock, bringing to an end the oppressive reign of Old Man Humidity which made the early hours seem warmer than yesterday.

April showers are due to fall tomorrow, but are expected to have little effect in marring a generally fair week-end.

Temperatures ran from 4 to 10 degrees higher today as compared with the preceding 24 hours, and promised to be a record-breaking, since yesterday's figures showed that Boston experienced the warmest and most sultry April 22 in weather bureau annals.

FIREMEN BATTLING MENACING BLAZE

Cambridge firemen battled for hours today to save one of the chief industrial areas of the city when flames swept the big structure at Nos. 195 and 185 Albany street, with loss estimated at $100,000. Dozens of other factories are adjacent to the ruins and their activities were tied up by the fire, smoke and hose lines.

Hearst Crime Remedy Praised by Head of Salvation Army

Chicago, April 25.—General Bramwell Booth, of the Salvation Army, in a statement given out here, praises William Randolph Hearst for his signed editorial of April 1—"We Cannot Cure Murder by Murder; We Must Adopt Another and Better System."

In this editorial published in all his newspapers, Mr. Hearst contended that our whole penal system has broken down because, "founded on the basis of force and violence instead of on the basis of Christian care of our fellow men, of moral and mental development, of the conscientious performance by the State of its duty to the citizen." The cure for criminality, he urged, is not by punishment, "but only by education

FIREMEN SAVE DOZEN BIG PLANTS MENACED IN ASBESTOS FLAMES

A three-alarm fire, starting in an asbestos storehouse, caused damage estimated by fire officials at $100,000 in Albany street, Cambridge, today, and for an hour threatened the chief manufacturing district of the city.

A dozen or more factories grouped in the area surrounding the structures at Nos. 195 and 185 Albany street, through which the flames swept, were endangered and business activities were disrupted by dense smoke and hose lines.

Fifty trucks belonging to the Ward Baking Company and the National Biscuit Company were unable to leave their plants on their daily [illegible] across the streets, and the Cloverdale Creamery and several other factories were delayed for more than

COMEAU DEATH GUN IS IDENTIFIED BY POLICE

A shoot-to-kill order by superintendent Michael H. Crowley, coupled with the identification of the murder pistol as his property by Patrolman Andrew Graham of the Jamaica Plain police, today featured the hunt for two Roxbury youths indicted for the slaying of Patrolman Frank J. Comeau of Dorchester.

Superintendent Crowley's order, issued to all division commanders, instructed policemen "To shoot to kill," if resisted in arresting Albert Deshon and Samuel Sambursky, and also called for a search of vacant garages, houses and buildings for a daytime hide-out.

Patrolman Graham went to the Fields Corner station and identified

ANDREWS ADMITS DRY ACT CAN'T BE ENFORCED

Washington, April 23 (I.N.S.)—The dry law can never be enforced effectively until Congress passes the administration's bill establishing an independent prohibition bureau with a director in charge, General L. C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of Treasury, told the Senate prohibition committee today.

Andrews, recalled by the drys, was not questioned about his previous testimony that government sale of beer would be a material aid to law enforcement.

The dry law chief also said he expected the operation of the liquor treaties with Canada and Great Britain would be of great aid in preventing liquor smuggling.

"The famous rum row is practically dissipated," he said. "We have made that business so unprofitable that the big dealers have withdrawn from that field."

General Andrews disclosed that the formula for completely denaturing alcohol has been withdrawn.

"We found that there was so much

New York, April 23 (A.P.)—A sweeping advance in prices took place in today's stock market as a result of the reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate, accompanied by recessions in other monetary accommodations.

The early gains ran from 1 to 12 points and encompassed a wide variety of issues.

"Big Four" common stock led the advance by soaring 15 points to 485½. Fidelity & Insurance jumped 6 points, and Atlantic Coast Line 5½. An early gain of 7½ points in General Electric was lost on the traditional selling news, which followed the announcement that the stock would be split up on a 4 to 1 basis, and a dividend of 75 cents a share declared in the new stock, after the plan had been approved by the stockholders.

Virtually all the standard rails and industrials participated in the upward movement. Trading was in enormous volume, sales exceeding 1,500,000 shares before the third hour.

POLICE TRAIL COMEAU GANGSTERS TO HIDING PLACE NEAR HUB

ROB MORE HOMES IN FLIGHT

WILL "SHOOT TO KILL."

Immediately after the slaying an attempt was made to trace the weapon through Iver, Johnson & Co. which concern sold the pistol. It was learned, however, that their record book had been loaned to the office of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien to be used as an exhibit and had been lost in the courthouse.

The police failed to explain why Patrolman Graham had not identified the pistol previous to today.

Superintendent Crowley instructed all division commanders to have every man available search all hours of the day through empty garages, houses and buildings in an effort to locate the hiding place of the boys, who, for more than three days, have outwitted the police.

He instructed the commanders to tell their men that the boys were of a dangerous type, that they are armed and will shoot.

If the police meet resistance they are to shoot to kill, Superintendent Crowley ordered.

EXTEND HUNT FOR BOYS.

He stated it was believed that the boys were hiding during the daytime, emerging at night to either rob stores for food supplies or take part in street holdups.

A complete description of the boys was again given in the order, and the captains were requested to see that the men made a note of every detail of these descriptions.

They were also instructed on those divisions where there are camps and Summer homes, to get into communication with the owners to learn if they had been entered.

In the search today for the fugitives, Special Officer Cornelius Leary and a detail of police whirled away from the Fields Corner station for a Boston suburb.

The officers, who refused to discuss their mission, were said to be acting on a tip concerning the location of the seventeen-year-old youths indicted yesterday for first-degree murder.

Evidence that the boys, indicted jointly with Stanley S. Toothaker, eighteen, whose confession started the hunt for them, were in Boston Tuesday night and Wednesday morning stimulated the search.

Special Officer Brubason, with a police squad, visited cabins on Dorchester tunnel revealed by Toothaker and found empty the original containing food, and a Tuesday evening paper.

NEW BREAKS CHARGED.

The articles were found on top of the newsstand in the unused section of the tunnel, facing the stairs. It is believed the position was selected because of its strategic advantage, as police officers descending the stairs could have been picked off by the boys with their guns.

For more than three days the youths, one of them said to be a victim of tuberculosis and heart disease, have defied the entire Boston Police Department, as well as the police of outlying sections.

Their descriptions have been broadcast to other cities, and a watch is being maintained for the youths along the entire Atlantic seaboard.

Three new robberies were today credited to the fugitive youths. While the police search for them was being conducted outside the city, it is believed they returned to the very district where the crimes occurred, and robbed two apartment houses, then looked a third in Roxbury.

News of the breaks were suppressed by the police and leaked out today although one of the robberies occurred April 17, another on the nineteenth and the third on the twentieth.

HAVE NARROW ESCAPE.

The police today were checking up a break believed to have been committed by the two boys Monday night, when the home of Raymond B. Chase, at No. 41 Iffley road, Jamaica Plain, was entered. After cutting the telephone wires one of the youths forced a window and entered, while the other stood guard.

Leslie Adams of No. 39 Iffley road, aware the Chase family was away, shunted at the lookout, who fled, while the boy inside the house jumped from a window, ran across the street and through the yard of Charles Morse, at No. 30 Iffley road.

Morse, who had been alarmed by Adams' cries, ran into his yard to find one of the youths caught on a barbed wire fence. As the householder drew near the boy produced a gun and shouted:

"Stand back, or I'll blow your head off!" Morse stood back and the boy escaped.

The greatest haul was made in Dorchester, where the suite of Samuel Rosen, at No. 30 Hewins street, was ransacked, jewels valued at more than $200 being stolen.

In the suite of Emma Lang, No. 35½ Paxton street, Roxbury, clothing valued at $100 was taken and at the home of Maxwell Gordon, No. 30 Harlem street, Dorchester, $103 in money, two checks for $150 each and two suits of clothing were taken.

N. Y. DRUGGISTS CUT RUM WITHDRAWALS 40 P. C.

New York, April 23 (A.P.).—Withdrawals of whiskey by drug stores this year have decreased 40 per cent compared with the first three months of last year, Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator, said today.

Mr. Mills said that the enforcement of the conspiracy count in the prohibition act against druggists and physicians had caused a more careful handling of prescriptions.

Mills also said that he had cut from ninety to thirty gallons the usual druggist's quarterly allotment of liquor.

DEATH THREAT AVERTS CAPTURE OF COMEAU SUSPECTS IN BARBED-WIRE TRAP

Yard in rear of home of Charles Morse, No. 30 Iffley street, Jamaica Plain, through which Comeau fugitives fled after they are alleged to have entered residence of Raymond E. Chase, No. 41 Iffley street. One of the boys was caught on barbed wire and escaped after flourishing gun at pursuer. George Kolka is holding the obstructing wire.

Marion Morse, who chased fleeing boys with her father. The latter was about to seize the boy caught in the barbed wire when the youth whipped out a gun and said: "Get back or I'll blow your head off!" This boy then freed himself and darted away.

Four children who espied the Comeau suspects as they fled the Chase home. They helped shout the alarm which came near trapping the boys. Those in the group are, left to right—Edna MacKenzie, No. 36 Iffley street; Clifford Nickerson, No. 61 Monticello street; Paskalia Zevitas, No. 60 Iffley street, and James C. Ray, No. 44 Iffley street.

View of the Chase home, showing window through which one of the hunted youths is said to have entered the residence. His pal is believed to have remained on guard outside. The youths fled when espied by a child, who cried the alarm. Before entering the house the pair cut the telephone wires.

$100,000 LOSS IN CAMBRIDGE

two hours in opening because of the smoke.

Employes of the various plants joined with firemen in taking measures to prevent the flames from spreading to other structures and causing a general conflagration in the district in which millions of dollars in buildings, equipment and stock are invested.

Ladderman Joseph Bargus fell from a ladder during the height of the fire but escaped with bruises. After medical treatment he returned to fight the flames. Several other firemen were temporarily overcome by smoke.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

Fire Chief Casey and officials of the Nightingale & Childs Company and other concerns whose property suffered the greatest damage, figured the loss at $100,000. The cause was undetermined.

The fire spread from the storehouse of the Nightingale & Childs Company, manufacturers of asbestos and magnesia, on the second floor of the two-story brick building at No. 189 Albany street, to several other manufacturing plants and storage rooms in the same structure and also to the building at No. 155 Albany street.

Several plants in the building at No. 135 Albany street suffered heavy water damage.

Because of the crowd of workers in nearby factories who gathered at the scene, Chief of Police John J. McBride was forced to summon police reserves to hold the spectators in check.

COP DISCOVERS.

Flames were discovered shooting from the windows of the Nightingale & Childs plant by Patrolman John Roberts of Central square station, who sounded the alarm. Two more alarms were sounded as soon as firemen arrived.

The fire swept quickly through the building, which is a long one, extending a long distance from Albany street, and it was an hour before the flames were under control.

Besides the asbestos and magnesia warehouse, the Willard Storage Battery Shop on the first floor of the same building was burned out. The rooms of the T. A. Snider Company, canners of preserves, on the second floor, were also burned out.

Rum Defendant

Patrick McDonnell of Boston, defendant in the Swampscott rum conspiracy trial, was accused of being in league with ex-Police Chief Quinn by a witness today.

RAID WARNING IS LAID TO QUINN

Two government witnesses testified in Federal court today that former Police Chief Quinn of Swampscott warned rum runners of a raid and delayed his coming until they had removed their stock.

The witnesses were George Maccia and George Philcrants. Quinn and fourteen others are on trial for conspiracy to smuggle liquor.

Maccia, who is one of the defendants, is charged with conspiracy to smuggle liquor, but has pleaded guilty. Philcrants is a Swampscott policeman.

According to their stories, Quinn sent word to the alleged smugglers that he had to make a raid because the Federal prohibition agents were coming down to make a search.

He told them to take away all the stuff from the house on the Johnson estate except nine or ten cases, according to the witnesses. Philcrants said he was told by the chief that they would delay a while "so as to make a bigger haul."

When Quinn met Maccia later, it was testified, he learned that there was a delay in getting more liquor away. Testimony also that this information was telephoned to the chief by George Garrett, one of the defendants, on instructions from Patrick McDonnell of Boston, another defendant, who asked him to wait.

After "killing time," testified Philcrants, Quinn went to the house by the back way but finding the liquor still on the premises because the trucks had not arrived to cart it away, he left with his men. Returning later, the chief was said to have given Maccia "the wink," and then made his search, but the contraband was gone.

NAMES DRY AGENTS.

Maccia brought the names of Hugh Wylie and William J. Newell, former Boston prohibition agents, into the trial for the first time, placing both of these defendants on the beach when liquor landing operation were in progress. He also declared that he was told by Chief Quinn and others that he would "get bullets" if he talked or squealed.

Maccia said that he was approached several times by Harry Brown, Patrick J. McDonnell of Boston and other defendants and urged to help out in the alleged liquor landing expeditions.

"I think it was Harry Brown who told Josh Acker and me that we'd get bullets if we squealed," he testified. "Me and McDonnell came to me a lot of times and Brown told me the same old story, saying he had the whole prohibition force fixed up, and Chief Quinn fixed up, too."

Faces 3 Charges

Miss Anna Kelley of Columbus avenue, Somerville, who conducts a jewelry store in Boston and who was arrested three times today on three different charges.

Anna Kelley, who lives in Columbus avenue, Somerville, but who conducts a jewelers' establishment in Tremont street, not only was arrested and on her way to court once today but she was arrested a second time and then re-arrested, the arrests coming within fifty yards of each other.

The Somerville girl was toiling up Pemberton hill on her way to Superior Court to stand trial on four counts of larceny, totaling $3,000, from Charles W. Alsterlund, a Boston jeweler, when Inspector O'Neil arrested her.

The O'Neil arrest was on two counts of larceny, one a diamond valued at $300 from Catherine Ford of No. 27 School street, and the second, two rings and a bracelet, valued at $240 from James J. Sullivan, connected with a big Hub jewelry house.

Inspector O'Neil and his girl prisoner had taken only a couple of dozen steps into Pemberton square when Special Officer Lyston of the Milk street station rearrested her on a charge of larceny of $18.50 from Harry Parker by means of a worthless check.

LAST SURVIVOR OF JOHN BROWN BANDS DIES AT 92

ingenuity and money devoted to redistilling," he said, "that this alcohol could be reclaimed with probably only one-half of one per cent, of wood alcohol in it."

Declaring the prohibition controversy had produced a "desperate situation," Mayor Dever of Chicago asked the committee to ponder seriously whether some effective remedy cannot be devised.

The dry law, he said, had benefitted some homes and damaged others, and he counselled both drys and wets to make "concessions" in the public interest.

FEARS PUBLIC REVOLT.

"There is a time," he said, "when the people will revolt even against legal methods if they become too oppressive."

So serious has the prohibition controversy become in the great cities, the mayor told the committee, that public officials no longer are chosen on the basis of their ability, but according to their stand on the liquor question and after they take office they are forced to give most of their time to dry enforcement problems to the detriment of other important public business.

Mayor Dever frankly conceded that he did not know what solution would be most effective, but he said the Senate Committee would not do its full duty unless it sought diligently for a remedy.

"This pussyfooting now, of what Olson said here, is another by-product of the Volstead law. They get an opportunity to have their first statements blazoned in the press over the country and then they soften on their statements too late."

Mayor Dever declared that Chicago is besieged by bootleggers and beer runners operating from nearby towns.

"There has been no effort by the Federal, county or local officers to enforce the law in those places, except Evanston and Oak Park," Dever said. "Why have they gone to these towns? Because they have been driven out of Chicago. I make the statement now that there is not a single well-known public vice resort in the city of Chicago."

MANY DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

"It's a grave matter for this committee to ponder whether we are going to continue a system that has this effect on the great cities of the country."

"I am hoping that the day will come when we can be relieved of this situation. There is a crying need to look after other activities of the government, but we cannot give too much thus to this prohibition question. I find myself enmeshed in it from morning until night."

Mayor Dever said the increase in the arrests of drunken automobile drivers in Chicago had increased about 704 per cent.

"But those figures simply lead us into a bog," he added. "We must remember there has been a great increase in the number of automobiles in operation."

Between 1913 and 1925, he went on, the deaths from alcoholism increased 448 per cent.

"Something must be done, but I am not big enough and I do not believe any other man is big enough to give the answer at this time."

"I don't doubt that the prohibition law has produced a great deal of good in many families," the Mayor said. "On the other hand, there are many families with stills who are participating in home brewing."

He urged that the two sides of the prohibition question sit down together and make some concessions.

Senator Harreld asked if his rural districts were to get no consideration in the solution of the problem.

"I can't answer," Dever said, "but that question only serves to point to the difficulties of the situation. You can ask a thousand questions that I can't answer."

Call Yale Editor to Refute 'Dry' Data of Fisher

Washington, April 23 (I.N.S.).—The editor of the Yale News will be summoned as a witness in the Senate prohibition hearings, it is announced today by Julien Codman of Boston, "prosecuting attorney" for the wets, to tell of the "wet and dry" vote among Yale undergraduates.

Senator Reed declared the Yale News poll had shown that Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist, gave the committee incorrect information about the attitude of Yale students on prohibition.

HUB 'PEACHES' COULD GET RID OF HER CASH

Plenty of rivals of pretty "Peaches" Heenan in methods of spending a crisp thousand-dollar bill each day—if the solo-grand note were available—are cropping up in Boston, Miss Betty Seaman of the Hub even going so far today as to live through a mental whirl of spending.

Each morning "Peaches" Heenan, who now, of course, is "Peaches" Browning, child-wife of New York's "Cinderella Man," receives a gift of $1000.

"I could make that $1,000 look sick each day if I had it," Betty Seaman declared today.

"Give me flowers first, bunches of them—yes, bushes. I've always wanted to step into a florist's and charge an armful of flowers to my account. I've always wanted to be able to say nonchalantly, 'Just send a few of the best.'

"I would dine in the most fashionable hotel. I would go shopping and get new shoes and stockings more than I could ever wear. Often I've wanted to be able to say to the saleslady, 'I'll take six pairs of each.'

"Some of my easy money would go for gems and jewelry. I know just the diamond I would take for my own if I had that $1,000 bill given me each day. It's a beauty I had the privilege to see in Boston street jeweler's, is just $3,200—a mere three days' pin money.

"Oh, I'd know how to spend what I haven't got. What girl wouldn't?"

Now, girls, how would YOU spend that $1,000 bill each day if you were fortunate enough to have one handed to you each morning? Tell the City Editor of the Boston Evening American in a 100-word letter.

NAVY MAN WINS HIS SON, 3, IN HUB COURT

A 3-year-old son was returned to his father today when Judge Pierce, in Supreme Court, granted a writ of habeas corpus to Lieutenant Howard H. Montgomery, U. S. N., to recover 3-year-old Robert H. Montgomery, who has been living for two years with an uncle and aunt in Waban.

The uncle and aunt, Samuel B. and Bessie L. Morgan of No. 87 Mossfield street, Waban, testified the lieutenant had neglected his son for the two years. They asked permanent custody, but Judge Pierce ruled that a parent is entitled to his child unless it was proved that the child's welfare required other action.

Lieutenant Montgomery, a native of Silver Springs, Md., is stationed at the submarine base at Coco Colo in the Panama zone. There are two other sons with him. The mother died in January, 1924, and her sister took Robert temporarily.

BANDITS STEAL PARTS FROM PLANE

Shanghai, April 23 (A.P.).—Lieutenant Boived, Danish airman, who is flying from Copenhagen to Tokio, arrived here today and reported that bandits at Shanghai, where he landed last Monday, had stripped parts from his airplane.

FLOWERS AND GEMS AND DINNERS WOULD GET HER DAILY $1,000

Betty Seaman's suite in the fashionable hotel would be a bower of posies—if she had the thousand-a-day that now goes to Mrs. "Peaches" Browning.

"And gems—I'd buy gems and jewelry—if I only had the $1,000 every day," said Betty. She knows where there's a diamond that just suits her and the price is less than four days' pin money—that is if your pin money comes in $1,000 bills as a daily breakfast gift.

Miss Seaman would order only the most tasty foods in the most expensive restaurants if it were up to her. Here she proves it. What would you do with a thousand a day, you other girls of Boston and points in all directions except east—that is, if you had a rich "Cinderella man," too?

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

PITY POOR BETTY BLYTHE! WAILS AT LACK OF CLOTHES IN GODDESS ROLE

Betty Blythe had no complaint against the lack of clothes to wear in this role of Miss Princeton such as she made in her suit against Samuelson, the British film producer, for salary and expenses due her during the production of "She."

Betty decried the lack of costuming in "She," but publicly at least she was never heard to murmur against her attire as Zahrat, the lovely desert flower, in "Chu-Chin-Chow."

Betty in street costume, it will be seen, is just as bewitching with her charms modestly hidden

Betty told the court that her costumes in "She" looked like those of the Folies Bergere although she was supposed to be a goddess. The costume of this role bears some resemblance to the type to which she objected. Betty declared that she was "no beauty" and has "only a certain amount of histrionic ability which I must add to other abilities, one of which is to wear clothes."

AUTO SALES GIRL NO. 1 IS TO BE BRIDE

Marriage intentions were filed in Cambride today by Boston's first automobile saleswoman, Gladys Noel Torrop of No. 65 Mt. Auburn street, Cambridge, and Kenneth B. Foye, mechanical engineer, of No. 114 Upland road, Cambridge.

A business girl on her own hook is the bride-to-be, but she will be remembered better, perhaps, as the former secretary of Conrad W. Hooker, the girl who innocently launched the drive against former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty in the New Haven Railroad grab two years ago.

She will also be remembered as one of the two girls who, in 1917, attempted to work their way to the Pacific Coast and back "by 1919 when the war will be over," as they predicted.

Miss Torrop is the daughter of Mrs. M. L. Torrop of Medford, while Foye is the son of John Foye of No. 14 Upland road.

The date for the wedding was not announced today but it was stated that the best man would be Sumner Foye, brother of the bridegroom-to-be, and the maid of honor will be Hilda Torrop, sister of Gladys.

Soon to Wed

Gladys Noel Torrop, Boston auto salesgirl, who is engaged to marry Kenneth B. Foye, Cambridge mechanical engineer.

ELECTRICAL WORKER MISSING FROM HOME

Police have been asked to locate Fritz Haschkie, 32, a General Electric worker missing from home, No. 32 Commercial street, Lynn, since Sunday, April 11.

According to the missing man's family, he left early Sunday morning in the best of health and said he was going to the store. He is described as 5 feet 8 inches in height; dark complexion and weighing about 150 pounds. He wore a light top coat and soft brown hat when last seen.

MRS. EPSTEIN WHISPERS 'EPITHETS'

Epithets which she said her husband flung at her, "too terrible" for open court, were whispered to Judge Leggatt in Probate Court at East Cambridge today by Mrs. Cecile C. Epstein in her divorce suit against Dr. Nathaniel Epstein, Framingham dentist.

Mrs. Epstein charges cruel and abusive treatment and infidelity. Her second day on the stand she was extremely nervous.

Dr. Epstein's own father told her, Mrs. Epstein said, that he wished he were dead, rather than have to come to Framingham and witness the actions of his son.

On one occasion her husband made her get up after she had retired and wash and iron curtains "as they would be "nice and fresh" in the morning, he said. Asked if she was afraid of her husband, she replied, "I feared him constantly."

During her testimony she turned to the court and asked:

"Your Honor, is it right for his sister and brother to sit back in the court room and laugh at everything I say?" Dr. Epstein's attorney remarked that if anyone was laughing he had no right to do so.

Under cross-examination by counsel for one of the women named in the suit, Mrs. Epstein said she was thrown out when she and a detective trailed her husband to the home of Miss Oberlin Brusso in Marlboro.

PHONE PROFITS MAKE BIG GAIN

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, according to its report issued today, earned in the first quarter of 1926 $2.05 a share on $110,300,000 stock, against 64 cents a share in the same quarter of 1925 on $53,025,400 stock.

After payment of the $2 quarterly dividend there was a balance to surplus of $64,305.

Wants Liberty

Mrs. Cecile C. Epstein of Framingham, who is suing Dr. Nathaniel Epstein, a dentist, for divorce. The case is being tried in East Cambridge court.

GIRL HELD FOR INFANTICIDE; MAN INVOLVED

Worcester, April 23.—A tearful young mother, stunned by the arrest descent of the police upon her, confessed today, according to the authorities, that an infant's body, found in Curtis Pond, was that of her baby, born out of wedlock several days ago.

The 22-year-old girl, Miss Edna Deedy, of Wayne terrace, was arraigned in district court, charged with concealing the birth, but when Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker reported that the infant had been killed by a wound in the brain when only a few hours old, she was held for murder.

Arraigned with her was Frank E. Boyle, twenty-six, of Euclid avenue, who works with the girl in a South Worcester shop. He was charged with a statutory offence and was held in $1,000.

Miss Deedy named Boyle as the father of the child but she did not involve him, the police said, in the disposing of the infant.

The baby was born at her home several days ago, the girl said, while her family were away. She had no medical attendance, according to her story, and the baby was still born.

Tucked in a pocket of the bag police found a water-soaked envelope containing a dress pattern. A Piedmont street address was still fairly legible and a woman was located who declared she gave the pattern to Miss Deedy.

DEATH IN 19 OUT OF 20 DRINKS IN NEW YORK

New York, April 22 (I.N.S.).—Nineteen out of every twenty drinks sold in upper Manhattan and the Bronx are poisonous, according to statistics made public today by the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau.

The statistics were obtained by analysing liquors seized in raids.

Marshall Gets 10 to 20 Years

Philadelphia, April 22 (A.P.).—David L. Marshall, convicted of second degree murder for killing Anna May Dietrich, today was denied a new trial and was sentenced to ten to twenty years in penitentiary.

$675 Won Love

Elsie Bartlett, Somerville actress, is on her way to Hollywood to rejoin her husband, Joseph Schildkraut, who won her forgiveness by a $675 phone call to her in New York. (Int'l).

MOVIE QUEEN SUES BRITISH PRODUCER

London, April 23 (I.N.S.)—Betty Blythe, well-known film star, is no beauty, but she can wear clothes—at least that is what she told the judge in the king's bench division of the law courts today in the trial of her suit against G. B. Samuelson, British film producer.

One of Betty's complaints against Samuelson for salary and expenses which she alleges are due for her services during the production of the film "She."

Decrying the lack of costumes, Betty told the court that the costumes Samuelson furnished "looked like Folies Bergere Costumes."

"And I was supposed to be a goddess," she added. "I am no beauty. I have only a certain amount of histrionic ability, which I must add to other abilities, one of which is to wear clothes and design them."

This bit of evidence from the film star tickled the crowded courtroom, and there was a loud outburst of laughter, which caused the Judge to threaten to clear the court if there was any further mirth.

Ware Mill Agent Dies

Ware, April 23 (A.P.).—Alfred F. Buckley, 61, agent of the Ware Woolen Company since 1921, died today after a long illness. He was a native of Worcester.

STONEHAM WOMAN IN HER 4TH ROMANCE

Own Children Act as Maid and Best Man for Mr. and Mrs. George Smith

A daughter was bridesmaid for her mother and a son best man for his father at the marriage today of Mrs. Alice Mabel Roaf of Dedham and George Smith of Stoneham in the Stoneham Baptist Church.

This is Mrs. Smith's fourth marriage and her present husband's second.

Coincidence or a penchant for "Smith" was revealed in the romance when the wife said that "George Smith" was also the name of her first husband.

The couple lived in Medford as neighbors until Mrs. Smith consented to become his housekeeper at his home at No. 14 Curve street, Stoneham.

Miss Ellen Williams of Medford, the daughter of the woman, attended her mother. Ronald C. Smith stood up for his father. They were married by Rev. Llewellyn Aemer.

3 COPS ACCUSED OF NEGLECT

Three Boston patrolmen went on trial today before a board of three captains on charges of neglect of duty.

Spending forty-seven minutes in the L street bathhouse, on the Strandway, South Boston, without a satisfactory reason, is the complaint against Peter Herlihy of Station 12. Sergeant Winfield Studley is the complaining officer.

Patrolman Amos G. Patch of East Boston division is charged by Lieutenant William Livingstone, the "sleuthing terror" of the department, with idling eighteen minutes in the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn ferry station without an excuse.

William J. Mitchell of Station 12, South Boston, is alleged to have gone off duty after a tour of special duty at the Andrew square branch library without first reporting to his station.

CONNECTICUT IS AT FLOOD STAGE

Springfield, April 23 (A.P.).—Highest readings of the season in the Connecticut River upper reaches were recorded today. Wilmarth 8.2 feet above normal at Bellows Falls, Vt., 7.8 feet at Brattleboro, Vt., and 5.35 feet at Holyoke.

While these figures in themselves cause no alarm, they indicate a rapid rise, due to the effect of the warm wave on snow accumulations in Vermont, and careful watch is being kept of conditions by river interests, including the Boston & Maine Railroad, whose tracks closely parallel the river for miles. Flood warnings for the entire Connecticut Valley have been issued.

WHITTEMORE DEFENCE FIREWORKS EXPLODED

Buffalo, N. Y., April 23 (A.P.).—The trial of Richard Reese ("Candy Kid") Whittemore for murder moved forward slowly today. It was evident that some of the fireworks in the defense had been exploded when testimony by Mrs. Dora Jansen of Philadelphia was followed by that of John Johnson, a witness of the Bank of Buffalo holdup and murders. Mrs. Jansen is one of eight Philadelphia witnesses who testified Whittemore was attending a birthday party in that city when the robbery was staged. Johnson and four other witnesses swore Whittemore was one of the thugs who shot down Charles Clifford and Lewis Turington, bank employes, and escaped with $93,000.

FIREMEN INVITED TO SALEM TERCENTENARY

David Blair McClosky will make his debut in opera as Sharpless. The orchestra will consist of 75 pieces.

Maurine Palmer will appear as "Kate Pinkerton," the American wife. Many notable singers will be in the cast.

RUM ROW STILL 12 MILES OUT

New York, April 23 (I.N.S.).—Rum flow is beyond the twelve-mile limit. Customs officers and Coast Guardsmen have authority to search and seize rum craft within twelve miles from the coast line despite the ruling of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in dismissing an action against a Norwegian ship and a British vessel.

U. S. Attorney Emory R. Buckner said today that the decision had been misunderstood and that the two ships were prosecuted under the treaty between Norway and Great Britain, which provided that ships flying their flags, and violating American laws, could be apprehended within one hour's sailing distance of the American coast. It was this section that was rejected by the Appeals Court.

Beam, Falling 15 Floors, Crushes Man to Death

New York, April 23 (A.P.).—Struck by an 18-foot wooden beam, which fell from the 15th floor of a building at No. 306 West Eighty-sixth street, the construction of which he was supervising, Joseph Scheinberg was killed instantly today.

Joseph Smith, a foreman iron worker employed by the Paterson, N. J., Bridge Company, and two laborers were arrested on technical charge of homicide. The beam slipped from a rope noose.

Scheinberg was secretary and treasurer of the corporation which owned the building.

SEVEN DEAD IN FIRE TRAP

Philadelphia, April 23 (A.P.).—Seven persons lost their lives here today when fire swept through a four-story tenement house at 116th and Water streets. Six—including four children, were burned to death, while a forty-five-year-old woman was killed when she jumped from a fourth story window.

The four children, their mother and a man tenant were trapped on the fourth floor by the flames, which spread swiftly through the structure. The blaze is believed to have been incendiary.

The mother of the children escaped by climbing to an electric light wire in mid-air.

Crime Cure Approved by Gen. Booth

and by a practical application of the principles of Christianity."

General Booth's statement on Mr. Hearst's editorial follows:

"I believe Mr. Hearst to be right. "And the United States is not alone. What he says is almost equally true about the appalling failure of present methods of dealing with criminals throughout the world.

"The whole system is wrong, eminently calculated to produce and reproduce what it claims to correct. And it is costly beyond reason, both in life and treasure.

"But will not Mr. Hearst go a little further in his suggestion of a remedy? I hope he will. I know quite well what he means when he speaks so gravely and so confidently of the principles of Christianity and of bending the twig in the direction the tree should grow. But we need something more than this. We need to bring the evil and spirit of Christ to the individual criminal with the offer of his salvation—nothing less than a new heart—a new spirit of Christ to the individual criminal with the offer of his salvation—nothing less than a new heart—a new spirit—a new nature.

"Christ is always for the individual. The evil man must meet the divine man and clasp his hand for himself. He will make all things new.

"We of the Salvation Army see such transformations in thousands of criminals scattered among all nations, all races—the devil dancers of the East, the witch doctors of Africa, the angry communists of European cities, the would-be murderers and the thieves of all lands.

"Every sort and type of rascal finds at the Cross the great emancipation.

"Thieves and such like are not to be rescued unless the thief's nature can be changed. The real trouble is that whether in prison or out of prison, among true friends or fellow thieves, the thief-heart of him is the same. Nothing but a change of that very thing Jesus Christ promised, will be of any use.

"One other word: Christ seems to have contemplated this very method of reform. His commendation at the last is to be for those who visited him in the broken lives of men when in prison. Surely it could only be to take them the promise and loving offer of his salvation."

POSSE TO HUNT MISSING BABY

Walpole, April 23.—When the mills close tomorrow at noon, another posse will be organized to hunt for Helen Bakish, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ignatz Bakish, missing for a week.

The new search, continuing to Sunday, will be the last, it was announced today. If the girl, or some trace of her, is not found, the police will be convinced that she could not have wandered away last Friday of her own accord.

A lone policeman was engaged in the hunt today but inasmuch as virtually every inch of territory has been gone over for miles around, there was little for him to do but wander aimlessly.

Judge Gets Him Job

New York, April 23 (Universal).—Ralph Russo, who was arrested for singing on the streets to collect alms, was not only dismissed but was given a job in a Broadway music publishing house. The judge who heard the case was touched by the young singer's story and obtained employment for him.

GOVERNOR ENDS JERSEY PARLEY

Jersey City, N. J., April 23 (A.P.).—Governor Moore today halted efforts to mediate the textile strikes in the Passaic mill region. Refusal of Albert Weisbord, strike organizer and leader, to eliminate himself from the negotiations, caused the Governor's action, he said.

"Neither side has a sincere desire to settle the strike, I feel," said Governor Moore.

"Both Henry F. Hilfers, State secretary of the American Federation of Labor and a member of the mediation committee I appointed, and I were prepared to go to Passaic at 8 a. m. today, but we were advised not to go.

"The demands of the strikers include restoration of the wage scale prevailing before the ten per cent. cut of last Autumn, an increase of ten per cent. over the wages prior to that cut, return of the money lost to workers since the wage cut, time and one-half for overtime, a forty-four hour week, more sanitary working conditions and no discrimination against union workers.

MILTON MAN ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON COP

Ranaford P. Keith, said to be a Milton contractor, appeared in Roxbury court today, charged with assault and battery on Patrolman Cromwell of Division 10 the night of April 18. Keith, whose head was bandaged, said he was wounded by a shot fired by Cromwell, who, in turn, told the court he fired in the air, and the wound on Keith's head was inflicted by his revolver butt. Judge Hayden continued the case to May 7, holding Keith in $500.

23 TAKE VOWS AT METHODIST CONFERENCE

Students and Graduates of B. U. Become Deacons and Elders

Twenty-three students and former students of the Boston University School of Theology were ordained today at services held in the Copley Methodist Episcopal Church on Exeter street during the World Service conference there.

Sixteen of the students, including one woman, Miss Ada May Nash of Oskaloosa, Iowa, were ordained deacons and seven took the vows of elders.

Miss Nash, who was formerly pastor at Oskaloosa, will complete a post-graduate course in Boston University in June, after which she will be appointed pastor of the church in Crystal Lake, Iowa.

Bishop William F. Anderson officiated at the ordination. He was assisted by Bishop George H. Gross of Pekin, China, and Bishop Fred B. Fisher of Calcutta, India.

The deacons ordained were: William Elliott Austell, Harold H. Cramer, Edwin Dorer, Franklin P. Harris, Joseph E. Henderson, Richard Kellogg, Lester C. Myers, Ada May Nash, Joseph W. Reeves, Ralph E. Simester, Orio D. Stewart, William R. White, Henry W. Fraser, Eugene C. Williams, Terrence F. Ogden and Carl Judd Allen.

The elders ordained were Fred Bratton, John R. Cheney, Douglas P. Cole, John R. Marshall and Charles R. Prewitt.

GEN. BOOTH'S DAUGHTER HURT

Southampton, N. Y., April 23 (A.P.)—Miss Theodora Booth, daughter of General and Mrs. Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America, was in the hospital here today suffering from injuries received last night when her automobile collided headon with another car. The driver of the colliding car did not stop.

Miss Booth was returning to her parents' Summer home at Blue Point, N. Y., when the accident occurred. General and Mrs. Booth, who returned early today from a tour of the country, hastened to their daughter's bedside.

PARISH HOLDS BALL TONIGHT

By JAMES WALSH

Members of St. Joseph's parish, Maplewood, will have their first grand reunion and ball in Pythian and Fowers Hall tonight. The proceeds of the affair will be devoted to the building fund of the new church of the parish. The grand march will be started at 9 o'clock. George Horne will be the floor director, Miss Margaret Coakley assisting. The whist committee is headed by Ralph Scribner, assisted by Lawrence Hall and a number of matrons. The refreshment committee is headed by Mrs. H. O. Chappell, the ticket committee by Leo Renaghan, and the check room committee by John Doyle.

Court John J. Williams, No. 334, Catholic Daughters of America, will have its next regular meeting on Tuesday evening, April 27. Miss Lillian Hennessy, hostess for the social to follow, has arranged a dance with surprise features. Each member is permitted to bring one guest.

Roxbury Council, No. 123, Knights of Columbus, and Immaculate Conception Court, No. 394, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold their joint country circus at the Normal School Centre, Huntington avenue, Roxbury, tonight and tomorrow night. Patrick J. Caulfield heads the committee in charge. State Councilor George E. Curran is in charge of the decorations and [illegible] which was the feature in former years. Deputy Knight Maurice E. Tobin has a mixed group of six men and six girls who have been performing at the local theatres of the district.

The hall will be elaborately decorated with booths and settings portraying country scenes. Tomorrow afternoon will be given over exclusively to the children. John A. McCormack, Grand Knight, and Miss Lillian B. Clark, Grand Regent, have ably assisted the committee in preparing for the event.

Others assisting are Thomas McCormack, T. Tobin, T. Myers, James Burns, Charles Dehn, William F. Larkin, R. Lyons, Frank Brennan, Matt Brennan, William A. O'Keefe, W. J. Donovan, Frank Fay, Charles McCusker, John Halliesy, Fred Berger, Con McCormack, Frank McCormack, Frank McLaughlin, Joseph Kenney, Edward Fowers, John Powers, James Powers, John Ryan, John McDonald, Mary Tapp, Mrs. Sheehan, Mary McCormack, Anna Mona, H. Fallon, Mrs. Cody, Mrs. Farrell, Helen Donovan, Antoinette Craffey, Mary Craffey and Gertrude Skelley.

The annual convention of the Margaret Brent Civic Guild of Massachusetts will be held at the Hotel Buckminster on Sunday at 1:30 p. m. The address of welcome will be made by Mrs. Frank C. Scanlan of Milton, State president. Delegates from all the large cities in the State will attend. State Senator Gaspar G. Bacon will deliver an address in the afternoon.

Mrs. E. J. Callnan of Boston, Mrs. R. Foy of Quincy, Mrs. J. J. Adams of Waltham and Miss Anna Butler of Lynn, unit presidents, will preside over forty-five-minute sessions in the afternoon. Dinner will be served in the Spanish Room at 6:15. The speakers will include former U. S. Senator David I. Walsh and William C. Proul, supreme trustee of the Knights of Columbus.

Members of Boston Council, Knights of Columbus, will receive Holy Communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Sunday morning. The Rev. William A. Dacey, chaplain of the council, will be the celebrant of the mass. The committee in charge includes O. Frank Hayes, chairman; Fred Moynihan, Frank L. White, Peter Geoghegan, John Neary, Edward Byrne, Henry Fudge and Daniel Woods. A communion breakfast will follow at St. Rose Hall, No. 17 Worcester street, South End. Peter W. Collins, noted Knights of Columbus lecturer, will be the speaker of the day. Judge Joseph A. Sheahan will be one of the guests.

Charles S. O'Conner, former member of the Boston School Committee, will address the Common Cause Forum on Sunday evening in Franklin Union Hall, Berkeley and Appleton streets, South End. His subject will be "Lord Baltimore and the Maryland Pilgrims." A half-hour concert will precede the lecture.

200 CITY BILLS CONTESTED IN LOWELL 'PLOT'

One for $10,000 From Provision Dealer Among Those Placed in Trial Record

A mass of nearly 200 bills, which the government claims were not properly advertised or were for work done on a split contract, were offered in evidence today in Middlesex Superior Court, East Cambridge, at the conspiracy trial of Lowell city officials.

One of the largest bills introduced was that of Alex Malloux, wholesale provision dealer, which totalled approximately $10,000.

Other bills introduced were: Chelmsford Fire and Iron Works, two bills, $230 and $265.60; John L. Kelley, brick mason, eight bills, totalling approximately $1,500; James Cryan, electrical supplies, Lowell, two bills, $182 and $191.

BOSTON COMPANY NAMED.

Richard H. Shea, paper hanger, $193.24; Edward J. Shea, paper hanger, $178.87; William Gargan, plasterer, nine bills totalling approximately $2,229; Michael Reynolds, truckman, nine bills totalling $1,135; Chelmsford Forge & Iron Co., three bills, $2,948.94; Dupont Company of Boston, three bills totalling approximately $935.

Quigley & Harrington Co., plumbers, four bills totalling $708.81; Dyar Sales & Machine Co., $360, $470, and $1,500; Elgin Sweeper Company, contract with appended bills for $6,610 and Lewis A. Palmer & Son, edgestones, two bills, $41,937.40 and $113.11.

ADMITTED OVER PROTEST.

The defense objected to the admission of Elgin Sweeper Company bill on the ground that it had been properly advertised. It went into the record over the objection when Assistant District Attorney William D. Regan said he intended to show it was not properly advertised.

CITY AUDITOR ON STAND.

City Auditor Dennis Martin of Lowell sat in the witness chair while Assistant District Attorney Regan read the bills.

Another batch which went into the record included: F. P. Gallagher, electrician of Lowell, $7,007; Dupont Company of Boston, $1,300; Good Roads Machinery Company, $7,400; Garfield Furniture Company of Lowell, $1,325; Henry A. Carpenter of Lowell, electrician, $4,270; Quigley & Harrington, plumbers, $13,500; John J. McGuinness, plumber, $5,200, and P. W. Cox & Co., plumbers $3,170.

These bills, it was said, covered the year of 1924, and part of 1925.

BILLION IN RISKS WON BY VETS

Portland, Ore., April 23 (A.P.)—Federal Judge Wolverton today ruled that under Section 304 of the Veterans' Act of 1924 the war risk insurance policy of any ex-service man who has had temporary total disability rating during the life of the policy does not lapse through failure of the veteran to pay premiums.

The ruling was said to be the first of its nature in the United States, and observers of the case estimated that it would automatically put approximately $1,000,000,000 worth of war risk insurance policies back into effect.

COAL MINERS STRIKE TO GET NON-UNION MAN FIRED

Scranton, Pa., April 24 (A.P.)—About 2,000 anthracite workers were on strike today. At the Pennsylvania Coal Company Mine No. 1 at Dunmore, 1,500 men quit because of the company's alleged refusal to dismiss a man who was said to have worked in non-union soft coal mines. The man returned to Dunmore recently.

At Jeddo 460 men struck because a driver was suspended on account of an accident to a mule. The Jeddo-Highland Coal Company claimed the strike was in violation of the wage agreement.

40 MILLIONS IN OIL MERGER

Fresno, Cal., April 23 (A.P.)—Properties of the Pacific Oil Company have been formally transferred to the Standard Oil Company of California it was revealed by a deed filed with the county recorder here.

More than $40,000,000 is believed to be involved in the transaction.

The Standard Oil Company of California recently transferred its holdings to the Standard Oil Company of Delaware.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Busy Days Ahead for Commodore Nathaniel Farwell Ayer of the Eastern Yacht Club

THESE ARE BUSY DAYS for Nathaniel Farwell Ayer, Commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club, who is just about to lead that widely known sporting organization into what promises to be a record-breaking season of yachting and cruising. Quite the largest for many a year.

(Photograph by Apeda.)

MISS CONSTANCE BINNEY, whose marriage to Charles E. Cotting, on June 3 at Lyme, is of consequence to Boston's upper stratas. After a wedding journey abroad they will live at 410 Beacon street.

OFFICIAL OPENING of the pleasant clubhouse on the shores of Marblehead Neck is a date yet to be announced—the decision to be made at next Tuesday's gathering of Eastern powers-that-be for a pow-wow. Thereafter news of an authoritative sort will be forthcoming.

MR. AND MRS. AYER are to make their summer home at Marblehead again this season, just as they have for a year or so past. As hostess of the Bowdoin St. Crowninshield place, on Peach's Point, Mrs. Ayer and the Commodore will dispense that hospitality for which they are justly famous.

IN MARBLEHEAD'S big three-day celebration June 17, 18 and 19, naturally the Eastern Yacht cohorts will have a foremost place. The little town perched on its rocky heights is out to blaze a glorious trail as celebrations go, in honor of the American Navy and its first warships which were built at Marblehead, so tradition has it.

MRS. CHARLES J. ALMY of Brattle street, Cambridge, was at home yesterday afternoon in delightfully informal way in honor of her son, Charles J. Almy, Jr., and his fiancee, Miss Mary Elizabeth Gardiner, whose betrothal was formally announced a month or more ago.

THE ENGAGEMENT will be of short duration, for wedding bells peal in June for the young people. The tea was a small affair, intimates of the senior Almys being bidden, and some of the young people's circle of contemporaries dropping in to extend felicitations.

BOSTON'S SMART SET takes interest in two important out-of-town weddings tomorrow, having New York girls as brides. At the marriage in Tuxedo Park of Miss Louise King and Kenneth Shaw-Safe celebrated in St. Mary's Church, John Monks filled the best man role.

AT THE BRIDAL of Miss Georgie Fanshaw Potts, Boston men figure prominently—George Dwight as the bridegroom; his brother, James Dwight as best man, and Richard P. Nichols and Prescott T. Cumner doing usher duties. Bishop Ernest Stires reads the marriage lines in the chantry of St. Thomas's at four in the afternoon.

THE FUTURE MRS. KENNETH SHAW-SAFE is of Boston connections through the maternal line. Mrs. King is a daughter of E. Royal Tyler of Boston and Nice, France, and niece of the late Mrs. Edward Foote, whose domicile was for many years in Beacon street.

A KING ESTABLISHMENT in Pau, France, and Shaw-Safe homes in Providence, Newport and New York, give Miss King her future a wide and brilliant social background. Mr. King, like Mr. Dwight, took his sheepskin from Harvard not so very long ago, and while in Cambridge figured in the exclusive club set.

PRESTON TAPLEY STEPHENSON, who marries Miss Florence Emma Brown tomorrow in Grace Church, Newton, entertained his large entourage at a final bachelor jollification on Wednesday, the evening before Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Brown, parents of the bride, gave a bridal dinner-dance.

IT'S A LONG PROCESSIONAL that will pace the candle-lighted aisles with Miss Brown and Mr. Stephenson—eight ushers and eight bridesmaids, a little flower girl and her escort, a maid of honor and a matron of honor, and the best man. The Rev. Laurens MacLure reads the service, and Mr. Edwin Brown gives his daughter in marriage.

ART LOVERS and artists are drifting into the Gallery of the Guild of Boston Artists, whose annual Spring exhibition opened with a private view and continues with pleasant indefiniteness well into the coming Summer. Every noted name in local circles is on the list.

MARIE DANFORTH PAGE'S portrait (it might well be called "The Crimson Scarf," flaring forth a brilliant dash of vermilion at the gallery's far end is flanked on either wall by sea and landscapes, other portraits and still life.

A TOMB, A NOISE---THEN A DASH FOR ANYWHERE

North Adams, April 23.—Some got down to work they really functioned. He shot out of the tomb into bowel and interesting methods of securing excitement and thrill are listed in the books, but Francis Girard, being a grave digger, carefully scratched off today the item about tombs and vaults.

Girard has had his thrill in a tomb and also a vault, they being one and the same in his experience, which were hair raising if Girard still had his hair.

The grave digger went into the black torah in Hillside Cemetery to get a piece of canvas necessary to his grave-digging technique.

He clutched the canvas—but something scratched and moved. It rubbed along his hand. Girard's temperature dropped to far below freezing. There was a faint cry in the blackness.

When Girard's racing functions the cemetery with the acceleration of the first grave digger and the second and third combined.

Then, far away, he turned for a fleeting glance behind. A red fox was just diving out of the tomb and was interested in racing the opposite direction.

Girard got a new canvas, as the old one in the tomb wasn't much good anyway.

Louis F. Lemoine Dies

Philadelphia, April 23 (A.P.).—Louis F. Lemoine, chairman of the board of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company, died today at the home of his daughter at Villanova, Pa.

STARVING CREW MAKES PORT ON 'PHANTOM SHIP'

Schooner That Was Given Up as Lost Finally Comes Home After 130 Days at Sea

San Pedro, Calif., April 23 (A.P.).—The four masted schooner Irene, which came into port here a "phantom" ship after being given up for lost, today is being prepared to return to the service of commerce.

While the half-starved crew recuperated from the effects of weeks of short rations, the vessel's master, Capt. Allen E. Rosendal, took steps toward the disposal of the ship's cargo of lumber, originally billed for Florida delivery when the steamer sailed from Gray's Harbor, Washington, 130 days ago.

Arrival of the schooner barely cheated death, which had grimly stalked the ship for weeks. Two sailors, Fred Dale and G. L. Petersen, had broken under the meagre diet and were critically ill in their bunks when port was reached.

Blown far to sea by perverse winds and then becalmed in the South seas, the vessel's crew escaped death from starvation and thirst only through a sudden break of good fortune.

When they were ready for the end, with less than five gallons of fresh water left in the storage tanks, the sky darkened and torrents of rain struck the vessel. Rain caught in sails replenished the supply of drinking water.

Sighting 2,000 pounds of sea food, kept them from starving.

While playing pinochle April 8, Captain Rosendal and his wife, who made the trip with him, heard the ship's radio announce that although the Alvena, a sister ship of the Irene had arrived safely at Miami, the latter apparently had been lost at sea with all hands.

$100,000 Alcohol Seizure

Cleveland, April 23 (A.P.).—Thirty 50-gallon drums of alcohol, valued at $100,000, were seized by Federal dry agents here today. Three men, one of whom is alleged to have attempted to bribe the officers to release the other two, were arrested.

TURKISH WOMAN IS TO BE A REAL JUDGE

Constantinople, April 23 (A.P.).—Nigiuar Hanoum, the first Turkish woman to demand the right to exercise judicial functions, is on her way to the bench. She has been appointed clerk of the municipal court of Constantinople. Six months in this capacity are required of a woman before she may be made a judge.

Turkey's first aspirant to the judiciary will receive $10 a month while serving as clerk.

CHIEF JUSTICE RUGG HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Worcester, April 23 (A.P.).—Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis in City Hospital on March 28, was discharged from the hospital today and went to his home here. He has completely recovered from the operation, and is in excellent physical condition. It is expected it will be several weeks before he is able to resume his duties on the bench.

REVERE BOY IS WOUNDED BY EXPLODING CARTRIDGE

While attempting to remove the bullet from a .32-calibre cartridge which he claimed to have found near his home, fifteen-year-old William Riley, No. 3 Arcadia street, Revere, struck the firing-pin with a screw-driver and the bullet passed through his left hand. He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a fracture and possible infection from powder burns.

ELKS TO DEDICATE LEACH MONUMENT

Waterbury, Ct., April 23 (A.P.).—A monument to the memory of Edward Leach of New York, grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. Elks 1912-1914, will be dedicated at Riverside Cemetery here, May 5, by the grand lodge. Mr. Leach, a native of Boston, sailed the Grand Banks of Newfoundland as a fisher lad. As a young man he went to New York and, with Al Smith, now Governor of New York State, engaged in the fish business in the old Fulton market, eventually becoming one of the largest wholesale fish dealers in New York City.

Makes Record in Shooting at "Airplanes"

San Pedro, Cal., April 23 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. West Virginia has established a world's record in anti-aircraft gunnery. Nine direct hits were scored on an aerial sleeve target in a single salvo.

The hits were made by the starboard five-inch guns of the super-dreadnought.

The four-inch battery ripped a 16-foot cylindrical sleeve, towed across the ship's beam at a speed of 70 miles an hour by a torpedo plane at an altitude of approximately 12,000 feet.

Gunnery officers declared the effectiveness of the anti-aircraft battery was established from the fact that a bombing plane loaded with explosives could not reach that height.

HUB FOLK TOUR GLACIER PARK IN EVENING

Pictures and Lecture Under Auspices of Great Northern and Sunday Advertiser

Well-known railroad, steamship and tourist men, numbering 150, took a six-day trip through the impressive mountain, lake and glacial scenery of Glacier National Park in northwest Montana last night through the medium of moving pictures at the social exchange and entertainments of the Great Northern Railroad and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

J. H. Kenney of the Great Northern Railroad described the beauties and wonders of the Montana park in detail to the interested gathering in the business offices of the Sunday Advertiser, No. 32 Summer street.

A cursory showing of the natural wonders of the park and of the Oriental Limited, last word in luxurious train travel, which whisks tourists from Chicago to the park, filled two flitting hours.

MANY GUESTS.

Local and visiting representatives of the travel industry of Boston who were present included:

R. Thomas, Cunard Line; Mr. Jones, Cunard Line; Ed Cousell, Dollar Line; Jas Brennan, Admiral Oriental Line; Phil Chase, Little Bubbline; Fred Carlton, Little Building; W. F. Williams, B. & O. Daley and L. J. Delan, Chicago Northwestern Railway; Jordan & Fletcher and Mr. Bridgman, Canada Steamship Lines; S. T. Gilfield and H. I. Brock, Eastern Steamship Company.

LUNCHEON SERVED.

J. H. Kenney has toured Glacier Park with photographers, and his account and intimate photographs of its 250 lakes, 60 glaciers and its streams and rivers was doubly interesting because first hand.

The social exchange was a huge success as a combination of entertainment and travel education. It was arranged by Mr. Paul Fay, classified advertising manager, and Mr. Harold Barnett, International Tour and Travel Bureau, Sunday Advertiser, who acted as toastmaster.

Buffet luncheon was served. The entertainers were Jimmy Gallagher and Dorothy O'Brien, of Consolidated Ticket Offices, who sang and accompanied the community singing on the piano. Joe Legorio rendered ukulele solos. John Sullivan, advertiser sketch artist, contributed a pencil sketch of the lecturer, J. H. Kenney, drawn during Kenney's talk.

REP. GARNER CALLS MILLS BILL "LEGALIZED THEFT"

Washington, April 23 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon were criticized today by Representative Garner, Texas, in a new attack on the Mills bill for return of alien property.

"It is legalized theft," Garner told the House. "No one claims that the American taxpayers owe for German debts to private American citizens and yet they would have us tax our people to satisfy their selfish claims," which port she will proceed.

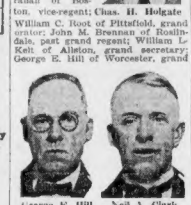
GRAND COUNCIL OF ARCANUM INSTALS

Holgate and All Other Members of State Board Are Reelected

The Grand Council, Royal Arcanum of Massachusetts, ended its forty-ninth annual session today at the New American House with election and installation of officers after the delegates had voted Lowell as their meeting place next year.

The following officers were reelected without opposition: Charles H. Holgate of Boston, grand regent; John F. McGarrahan of Boston, vice-regent; Chas. H. Holgate



George E. Hill Neil A. Clark

William C. Root of Pittsfield, grand orator; John M. Brennan of Roslindale, past grand regent; William L. Kelt of Allston, grand secretary; George E. Hill of Worcester, grand treasurer; Neil A. Clark of Lowell, grand chaplain; James W. Goode of Roxbury, grand guide; Frank S. Marshall, grand warden and William Brittain of Springfield.

George E. Hunt of Everett was elected chairman of the committee on trustees, and D. Joseph Manning, of Dorchester, chairman of the committee on finance.

Following the election the officers were installed by Uriah Tompkins of New York, deputy supreme grand master of the order.

F. R. Marshall J. F. Garrahan

During the session the 125 delegates present stood in a one-minute silence in memory of seventy past regents who have died since the last session. The silence was followed by two verses of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

It was announced that the supreme council of the order will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary next year in this city.

BULLETS HALT AUTO; THREE BOYS HELD

Three shots were fired into an automobile on North Shore road, Revere, by Patrolman Maynard Rogers of the Revere department today in halting four youths believed to have stolen the machine.

Rogers placed three of them under arrest, but the fourth, believed to have been the driver, made his escape. His identity is known and the police are seeking him.

The other three, arraigned in East Boston district court for taking an automobile without permission, gave their names as Frank E. Taylor, Neptune avenue; Ray H. Corkham, Shirley street, and William J. Thomas, Shirley street, all of Winthrop. They pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to Thursday.

The automobile, the property of Benjamin Spiller of No. 39 Highland avenue, Revere, was taken from in front of a house on Shirley street, Winthrop, where the owner was visiting.

Some hours later Patrolman Rogers saw the car containing four young men and ordered the driver to stop. Instead, he speeded on and Rogers opened fire, driving one bullet through the windshield, another through a tire, and a third into the back of the car. The machine was then brought to a stop.

COMMUTERS FIGHT FOR CONCORD TRAIN SERVICE

Under the new train schedule on the Lexington branch of the Boston & Maine, approved by the public utility commission, a group of riders using trains stopping at Concord, Sandy Hill and West Bedford have discovered they have lost out entirely. This was revealed at a hearing today before the commission on the petition of the road for discontinuing service on the Reformatory branch. Discontinuance is opposed by commuters.

Dwight S. Brigham, assistant to te B. & M. president, declared passenger revenue from the three stations amounted to $11.32 a day. Attorney Hoar said when the agreement was reached nothing was said about taking off trains.

WALSH CLAIMS VICTORY WITH G. O. P. VOTES

David I. Walsh will win back his Senatorial seat in the Fall, he predicted today as one of the largest gatherings of local Democrats in recent years sat down to a lunch and a pow-wow in Young's Hotel.

The luncheon was a testimonial given to Gov. Albert L. Ritchie of Maryland, a presidential possibility, who is in Boston to help plan the Democratic barrage in the coming campaign.

Sponsoring the feast were former Senator Walsh, Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic State Committee and Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, a Democratic national committeeman.

"I will surely be elected," declared former Senator Walsh at the luncheon, "if the promises of my friends who have agreed to vote for me are fulfilled. These promises include many from Republicans who have voted for me in previous contests."

Among those present were former Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil; ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald; Treasurer Charles F. Riordan of the Democratic State Committee; General Charles H. Cole, Edmund Billings, Frederick M. Mansfield, Joseph A. Conry, John A. Sullivan, John F. Malley, John F. Leamey, William F. Fitzgerald, former Congressman Michael F. Phelan, Frank J. Donahue, Stuart S. Janney, Baltimore, Judge Edward L. Logan, Howard Bruce, Charles H. Knapp and Frank R. Kent of Baltimore, and former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell.

SILVER LAKE WINS BACK NIGHT TRAIN SERVICE

The Public Utilities Commission today ordered the Boston & Maine Railroad to give Silver Lake and North Billerica night train service, starting April 25. Commuters had complained that a train which left the North Station at 10.30 p. m. and stopped at these two stations was discontinued on March 15 and that the train which formerly left Boston at 11.35 p. m. now runs express to Lowell. The result was that the last train stopping at Silver Lake and North Billerica left Boston at 6.14 p. m.

Comedy by Irvin Cobb Will Be Filmed on West Coast by Cecil De Mille

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS, Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Can you imagine Irvin Cobb and Cecil DeMille sitting down and planning a comedy together, the two extremes. One of intense drama and the other of delightful nonsense.

Well, that is exactly what happened when Mr. De Mille was in New York. Irvin Cobb was so pleased with the proposition made him that he agreed to come West and write an original comedy.

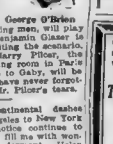
Irvin Cobb

Personally I think my old friend, C. B. has scored a tremendous coup in getting the rotund Mr. Cobb to write a screen comedy. His is a sense of humor that is spontaneous and should have a pictorial quality.

The De Mille reputation is so filled with an orchidacious idea of hot house pants and spectacular drama that it might be well to let the world know that there are other things forthcoming from the De Mille plant. "The Deluge," I am told, which will be started immediately, is to have the biblical ideas of "The Ten Commandments"—and "The Volga Boatman" is of course, serious.

THE sad story of Gaby Deslys, the Parisian butterfly who flittered and died a few years ago is the subject matter for "Midnight," Howard Hawks' next production for William Fox. Right now Dolores Del Rio, the Spanish beauty, is under consideration for the role of Gaby, and George O'Brien, one of Fox's best bets in the way of leading men, will play the male lead. Benjamin Glazer is busily at work writing the scenario.

I wonder if Harry Pilcer, the dancer, whose dining room in Paris contained a shrine to Gaby, will be in the picture. I have never forgotten the lilies of Mr. Pilcer's tears.

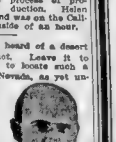


George O'Brien

THESE transcontinental dashes from Los Angeles to New York on a moment's notice continues to fill me with wonderment. Helen Dunbar, busy working on a picture, received an urgent message from Gloria Swanson asking her to come on to New York for "Fine Manners" which is now in process of production. Helen packed her bag and was on the California Limited inside of an hour.

Gloria Swanson

I HAVE at last heard of a desert that isn't hot. Leave it to Samuel Goldwyn to locate such a place. It is in Nevada, as yet untouched by movie invasion. "The Winning of Barbara Worth," recently Completed by Frances Marion, will be made there. Samuel, pardon my familiarity after an acquaintance of 18 years, had thought to make a simple production at a nominal cost. He is now faced with building a whole city on the desert, and with other enormous expenditures necessary to keep his next film up to his usual standard. In fact, the other evening he grew so nervous over figuring out the cost that we prevailed upon him to forget "Barbara" for the time being.



Sam Goldwyn

I WAS on the set of "Son of the Sheik," Rudolph Valentino's picture, the other day when George Fitzmaurice, the director, handed me some stills of Valentino and Vilma Banky in an ardent love scene. Pola Negri, sitting beside me, looked at the pictures intently for a moment and then said: "He make love to her but he is thinking of me."

Pola Negri

IVAN MOSJOSKINE, you might as well learn how to pronounce it, for you're going to hear about it many times during the next month. He will play the leading role in "La Femme Qui Rit" ("The Man Who Laughs"), by Victor Hugo to be filmed abroad by Universal.

Conrad Nagel Barthelmess

THE Grand Canyon, usually the mecca for all tourists coming West and East, will have an added attraction next week. Ronald Colman, Richard Barthelmess and William Powell are going there to spend a few days and it's up to one of them to say something original. Every person of any importance who goes to see the Grand Canyon always comes away adding to the literary description of this scenic wonder.

THIRD MONK DIES IN R. I. GRIP EPIDEMIC

Pawtucket, April 23 (A.P.)—Rev. M. Joseph, a member of the Cistercian Order of Monks at the monastery of Our Lady of the Valley, in Cumberland, died today in St. Joseph's Hospital at Providence. He is the third member of the order to die within a month, the result of an epidemic of grip. All the monks, more than forty in number, have been ill, but all except Fr. Joseph and two others recovered.

Father Joseph had been a member of the order forty years.

SUNDAY MOVIES LEGALIZED IN RHODE ISLAND

Bill Passed by Legislature Allows Shows in Every City Except Pawtucket

Providence, April 23 (I.N.S.).—Sunday movie shows will open in every city of the State except Pawtucket next Sunday. Monologues, singing and sketches will go on with the movies.

Both branches of the Legislature have passed the Lawton Sunday movie bill and Governor Esther was to sign it today.

Debate of the bill continued at such length in the Senate that the closure rule was invoked.

With the Sunday movie issue out of the way the legislative decks were cleared for a big night tonight.

Besides authorizing Sunday motion pictures in all cities except Pawtucket the Lawton bill provided for Sunday ice skating in indoor rinks.

AMERICANS JOIN IN TRIBUTE TO SHAKESPEARE

Stratford-on-Avon, Eng., April 23 (A.P.)—The flags of sixty-three nations were unfurled today as a world tribute to the genius of William Shakespeare on the 362nd birthday of the bard, marking the beginning of the celebration here. Many Americans were in the assembly.

Headed by a procession of children bearing flowers, the gathering marched to the little grammar school, where the boy Shakespeare learned his "little Latin and less Greek," and they went to his grave to place wreaths of flowers on the poet's tomb.

A distinguished group then gathered at the Town Hall for a luncheon at which former Attorney General Beck proposed a toast to "the immortal memory of William Shakespeare, gentleman." He asserted that the whole world generously and promptly should contribute to the work of reconstructing the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, recently destroyed by fire.

E. H. Sothern and his wife, Julia Marlowe, have announced the gift to the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon of the scenery, costumes and other properties of all ten of their productions of Shakespeare's plays.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the English Speaking Union at Town Hall in New York City. Felicitous messages were exchanged on the occasion of the celebration of Shakespeare's birthday between the union here and in England.

WOMEN BATTLE MAINE FIRE

Saco, Me., April 23 (A.P.)—Women became fire fighters in saving the colony of summer cottages at Camp Ellis at the mouth of the Saco River today.

A grass fire, driven by a high wind, got beyond control, destroying the cottage of Ernest E. M. Vinton and spread to two other cottages.

When the entire colony was in danger women manned fire hose left by firemen a few days ago and held the flames in check until assistance arrived from Biddeford.

Why Americans excel

The genius of America is restless. It is always striving to master new problems; and when new problems are solved, it advances to others. It is never satisfied.

For that reason we are constantly moving forward into new fields of discovery—insatiable, always demanding something newer, something better, something different.

Nothing demonstrates this more remarkably than the advertisements you read. They cover the entire range of human requirements—from the absolute necessities of life to the most refined luxuries. Yet they are constantly changing. This continual change means fresh material, fresh ideas, a stimulus to new endeavor.

The moment you cease to find interest in the advertisements of the offerings of industry, of commerce, of art—that moment you will begin to retrogress, and the world will slip away from you.

Reading advertisements is looking forward

OUSTED MAINE SHERIFF STILL HOLDS OFFICE

Leaves Boston for Home, Determined to Stick, Despite Court Ruling

After a visit to Boston with Henry F. Cummings of Aroostook County, Maine, returned to Augusta today to take up his cudgels in a struggle to prevent his removal from office.

When he left the Hub bound first for Lawrence police headquarters, where he was to talk to a prisoner wanted in his jurisdiction, Sheriff Cummings was determined to play his hand to the limit against the forces arrayed against him, including Governor Ralph O. Brewster and the Supreme Court of the Pine Tree State.

FORMALLY "FIRED."

In his absence, formal notification of his removal and the appointment of John Eastman of Boston Mass., as his successor, was posted in his office in Augusta by the Governor.

Friends of the deposed sheriff pointed out, soon afterward, that Cummings may be able to retain his office in spite of the removal, man date. They pointed out that the Council confirm the Governor's appointment before it is effective. As the Council voted 3 to 3 on sheriff Cummings' removal, this might be expected to line up the same way on Eastman's appointment.

CAN'T BREAK TIE.

In this case, Eastman would not qualify as the Governor could not accept and break the tie by casting a deciding vote as he did in the removal proceedings. Said and a further stand, Sheriff Cummings would remain in office, as he has not been removed until a successor takes office.

The sheriff was to go into conference with his attorneys immediately upon arriving in Augusta. His fight for Vardrain will culminate in the June primaries in Maine when he will stand for nomination, which a movement is afoot to prove that he cannot legally seek office again for five years.

"HIGH STANDING" WON'T SAVE AUTO DRIVERS

A man's high standing in his community counts nothing to a person driving with defendants charged with operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor, declared Judge Louis Lesky in municipal court in sentencing Guy H. Cameron of Stoneham to one month in the House of Correction on this charge.

Cameron appealed. According to the testimony in court he admitted having taken a drink before he said was in collision with another at Commercial and Prince, street, but he denied being under the influence of liquor.

"I get tired of people in courts who drink that respect they have high standing in their communities mean nothing to others feeling with those rights," said Judge Lesky.

"One man takes a spoonful of liquor and may be under the influence of it well another may drink a gallon and be immune. The danger is the unruly ones and unless he is arresting for the laws they have enacted we don't get much efficiency."

FIRE-FIGHTERS FEAR HIGH-TENSION WIRES

Springfield, April 23 (A.P.)—Hand lenses in the theatres of bath telegraph wires of the Turners Falls Power & Electric Company, carrying 16,000 volts, fire Ashburnham fire department and fifty volunteers fought fire that burned over 200 acres of land today.

It was feared the flames sent would melt the wire joints and the workmen were warned to avoid proximity to the wires.

SITS ON GRASS, "PINCHED"; SUES HUB COP FOR $1,000

Between the story of Clarence P. Wilson, Hub architect, and that of Patrolman Frank J. O'Neil of 104 Lagrange street station Judge Murray will have to choose in deciding when a $1,000 suit for false arrest against the policeman. Judge Murray reserved the decision today after hearing the two divergent stories growing out of O'Neil's arrest of Wilson last Summer for sitting on the grass on Boston Common. Wilson declared the cop told him to get off the grass and then arrested him before he could obey. The officer, however, asserted that he gave the architect seven minutes in which to comply with the order, then arrested Wilson when he merely smiled.

B., M. YARD BILL IS REPORTED IN HOUSE

Measure Provides for Increasing Freight Trackage on Cambridge Side

FLOOD WATERS COVER LOW LANDS IN MOSCOW

Moscow, April 23 (A.P.)—Ice jams in the river Moskva have turned it out of its banks and the low lying quarters of the city are flooded. Several factories are inundated and the water continues to rise.

In Ryazan the Pavlovka River is at freshet and several villages have been submerged, and cattle and food stocks swept away.

A large part of the city of Pskov, capital of the province of the same name, is inundated by waters from the Velikaya River.

Autopsy Shows Budwich Was Clubbed to Death; Two Farmhands Sought

Andover, April 23 (A.P.)—Five members of the state constabulary arrived today to aid local police in a search for the murderer of John Budwich, who died as a result of wounds yesterday at a farm in West Andover where he was employed.

John Zola of Cambridge, a fellow farm hand, is missing.

An autopsy on the body showed that Budwich died of a fractured skull. The fatal blow, a heavy iron bar which, it is believed, was the gun used, Zola and Budwich argued. The police say Zola was the boss.

PASTOR FAVORS BIRTH CONTROL AS "CHRISTIAN"

Utica, N. Y., April 23 (A.P.)—Birth control was advocated by the Rev. Leon Harold Houch of Detroit at the Northern New York Methodist conference here today as the best method of coping with overpopulation.

"A careful program of scientific control of fecundity," was the way Dr. Houch characterized his plan. He maintained it was not murder, but un-Christian, but a very Christian like thing to do in that it will prevent misery from attaching on the lives of other persons and prevent overcrowding within the nation with its attendant dangers of famine and pestilence.

500 JOIN MYSTIC ORDER IN QUINCY TONIGHT

Five hundred candidates will be inducted into Taleb Grotto of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm of Asiatic tonight. The ceremonial will be held in Quincy High School hall. Monarch Henry H. Hayward of Taleb Grotto will be in charge of the arrangements. The class is the largest ever initiated at any time by any Grotto in the State. Large delegations from Omar Grotto, Lynn; Alethela Grotto, Worcester and Rhedad Grotto, Brockton, will attend. A buffet luncheon at the State Armory, Quincy, will open the ceremony.

Everyone has an "eye for style"

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

make men's clothes with that idea

Style is so much a matter of proportion, color relation, and line, that many people think they cant see it. But we know they do. They are demanding better design in their houses, in their cars, in their books, in the things they wear. For years Hart Schaffner & Marx have put style into their clothes; they've used the masters of design, color harmony and cloth weaving to put it there. You'll see it in the clothes as well as the advertising

The Letters of Queen Victoria

A Paper That Goes Into the Home, Dependable, Fearless, Entertaining and Instructive

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

BOSTON, FRIDAY, APRIL 23, 1926

SECOND SECTION

Human Appeal in Private Documents of Greatest Woman Ruler

Queen Victoria at the period when she strove to keep Europe out of a general war.

NEVER did monarch fight more valiantly the battles of war than did Queen Victoria the battles for peace.

In today's installment of "The Letters of Queen Victoria," which the Boston Evening American is publishing daily with the full sanction of King George of England, this most famous woman monarch of modern times truly earns the title of "Queen of Peace."

War has broken out in spite of all Victoria's efforts. Denmark is being invaded by Prussia and Austria under a joint policy dictated by the Iron Chancellor Bismarck. Victoria has lost the opening battle for peace.

Her own chief ministers, Viscount Palmerston, Prime Minister, and the Earl of Russell, Foreign Secretary, backed by public clamor, are eager to intervene in behalf of Denmark, but Queen Victoria's desperate determination and sage counsels win her the support of the majority of her cabinet. She convinces them the other powers are only waiting for England to step in and set off the whole European powder magazine.

When it seems she must be overwhelmed by the tide of popular and political opinion in her own country, she kneels at the vacant bedside of her long departed Prince Consort and seeks in fervent prayer the strength to carry on the Battle of Peace.

War on Denmark Begun

Queen Victoria to Viscount Palmerston.

OSBORNE, 2nd Feb., 1864.—The quarrel is now beyond our reach (the German forces having invaded Schleswig the previous day) and we must wait to see the march of events. A time will very soon arrive when our advice, and possibly our mediation, will be asked; and if it is given with perfect impartiality, and a due regard to the interests of all parties, and the wishes and rights of the peoples concerned, it may condure to the peace and permanent security of Europe.

But till this time arrives the Queen cannot but think that far the most dignified course for England will be to remain passive.

The King of the Belgians to Queen Victoria.

LAEKEN, 2nd Feb., 1864.—Now for a few words about Schleswig-Holstein. The poor King of Prussia wanted war. Austria was pushed into it by a wish not to let an affair, which renders Germany nearly mad, go out of its legitimate influence, and by acting with Prussia to keep affairs in a more moderate line.

It is very unpleasant for the

GIRL'S RUSE GETS HER NO BABY

New York, April 23 (A.P.).—The dreams and hopes of ten-year-old Muriel Hausner of Yonkers to have a baby brother faded into obscurity today when she learned that her plans to claim an infant found in a subway station had collapsed beneath the scrutiny of the Bureau of Investigation of New York's Public Welfare Department.

Muriel's maternal instinct is credited with having prompted her to write to the department that she was the mother of the abandoned baby. Her yearning for a child to care for and her youthful imaginative powers were evident in the manner in which she sought the return of the infant and formulated elaborate plans for its homecoming.

SIGNS SELF "MRS."

For a moment her claims appeared in the ascendant. The baby to which she laid claim was about to be adopted by a New York family. Prior to the legal formalities incidental to the adoption Welfare Commissioner Red n Coler went through the records and discovered the letter which Muriel had written. Muriel had signed herself "Mrs. Hausner."

A halt in the approximate adoption proceedings was called while investigations sped to Yonkers only to find that "Mrs. Hausner" was ten-year-old Muriel. The girl's dream-house collapsed and her own mother became acquainted with the facts

WANTED NO OOPS.

Muriel, it was stated, first stated she had lost the baby through carelessness and fatigue and had been unable to find any trace of it until she saw a picture in the newspapers. The picture was accompanied with the notation that "the owner may have this baby by applying at the home."

"I hope you won't charge me more than $5 for him," the letter read. "I would have notified you sooner, but I had the grip.

"I would like you to send him as soon as possible. I will pay the nurse her fare. Please don't have a policeman bring her as it would be a shame to have a young baby connected with the police.

"I don't want anybody to know, if you can't send him I'll call for him and if I can't I'll send my little sister after him. It will be all right because she is very careful.

IS "TEACHER."

"Don't say much to her. Just give it to her, be sure to be a surprise for her. If you want her to call for him just drop a card to come to your hospital to have consults out by order of Dr. Wolf. Then someone will issue her downtown. I think I'll have to send her as I am a school teacher and my husband is away. I can't come after school hours because I teach dancing. Then my sister will soon be ten, so you can see she will be able to bring him home safely.

"She will bring $5 for his board. Please send me back the picture because it is an cute of him I want to keep it.

"Hoping I will get my baby back, (Signed)

"MRS. MURIEL HAUSNER."

GERMAN PRINCE LONGS TO VISIT AMERICA

Berlin, April 23 (A.P.).—Former Crown Prince Frederick William would like to visit the United States.

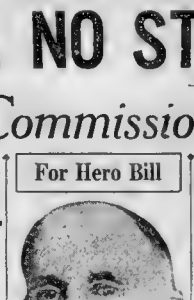
He has been talking about it for some time, but has been discouraged somewhat by those whose advice he has asked.

Recently it was pointed out to him that conceptions of his part in the war, which appeared to exist in America, would expose him to unpleasant comment, and that a visit there might be embarrassing to his admirers and to the American government. Consequently he will not go, at least for the present.

The former Crown Prince, like his father, loves variety and change. He is described as finding life irksome in his house at Oels amidst his 30,000-acre estate. Occasionally he visits Prince Rupprecht in Bavaria and sometimes a few of the minor former royalty. Just now he is in Switzerland, but his freedom of movement is restricted.

All Western Europe is closed to him, as well as Italy, Poland, Russia and the Balkans. His presence in Austria would cause political commotion and Scandinavia doesn't amuse him.

For Hero Bill



Herbert Wilson, police commissioner of Boston, favors the Boston Evening American pension bill, providing for the relief of families of fire and policemen killed on duty, and now before the Legislature.

DOHENY QUITS DONKEY FOR ELEPHANT

Los Angeles, April 23 (A.P.).—Political affiliations of Edward L. Doheny, who for years was an influential figure in Democratic ranks, have been transferred to the Republican party.

The oil producer announced that he had registered as a Republican for the first time "because I decided to affiliate with and support the party which more than any other provides the forces and policies which have produced our unprecedented era of prosperity.

"It is my belief that President Hard ing's promise to return to normalcy has been made good and the economic happiness being enjoyed by the entire nation assures that the policies made effective during his administration.

Although Mr. Doheny spoke of his registration as his first affiliation with the Republican party, William Kew, registrar of voters, said that records showed the oil magnate had registered as a Republican in 1920 and 1924. His last registration as a Democrat being in 1920.

HITS LEVY FOR BETTERMENT

That no betterment assessments be levied in connection with construction of the northern artery was urged today by Senator Warren E. Daggett of Somerville at a hearing before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee was considering an amendment to the original bill allowing the metropolitan district commission to deed back land taken by eminent domain that is not needed. Daggett contended that in the original bill there was no provision for betterment assessments.

He said from $60 to $90 individuals and corporations are "tapped" over the notice sent by the commission on betterments.

WOULD GIVE KIN FULL SALARIES

By HERBERT A. WILSON,
Police Commissioner of Boston.

The pension bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Bernard J. Casey of Boston and Representative John Thomas of Gloucester and which is now pending before the Rules Committee, in my opinion, has considerable merit as a humanitarian measure.

In Boston, under the present law, the widow or children of an officer killed in the performance of his duty receive an annuity not exceeding $600, but this annuity feature does not apply to relatives of unmarried officers killed in the line of duty.

Under Chapter 371 of the Acts of 1924, however, both the widow and children of officers and the dependent relatives of unmarried officers killed in the performance of their duty, are entitled, upon petition to the city treasurer, to the sum of $2,500

FOR FULL SALARY.

Under the bill introduced by Representatives Casey and Thomas and indorsed by the Boston Evening American, the surviving widow and children of officers and the dependent relatives of unmarried officers would receive a year's sum not in excess of the salary that the slain officer was receiving at the time of his death.

Such legislation would eliminate the necessity of public subscription for the support of families of officers slain while on duty.

Before the passage of this bill however, I would recommend the repeal of the present law covering annuities to dependents of slain police officers and advocate the repeal of the provisions of the law relating to the $2,500 payment, now allowed to these dependents.

ELIMINATE "CHARITY."

In my opinion the widow and children or dependents of any police officer killed in the performance of his duty, should be treated more as by the city in the discharge of which his life was sacrificed and appeals to the public for charity by dependents should be unnecessary.

A fixed amount should be paid to those dependents of slain officers so that the widow might take up the work of educating her children as they would have been educated if the father had not been killed and the dependent relatives or the next of kin of unmarried officers killed in the line of duty should not be forced to beg for aid and relief.

MOVE TO BLOCK "L" REMOVAL BILL FAILS

An attempt by Representative James T. Swan of South Boston to block the Mullin measure for an investigation looking to the purchase and removal of the Boston Elevated structures was defeated today in the House. By an overwhelming majority the House passed the measure to be engrossed.

"DISARMAMENT"—No. 2

I WAS fascinated by that surly crowd of soldiers which had once been a fine army and was now but a dissolute crowd of rowdies, displeased with themselves and others, but swaggering and truculent, so as to prove they were masters of the situation and need bow to no one, military or otherwise.

The General who was with me came to ask if he should have the train moved on.

"No," I said, "I have a great desire to disarm their unfriendliness. I cannot bear to see those sulky, unhappy, stormy faces. In former days they would have been delighted to see me. Only their false pride keeps them from being delighted today!"

Then my idea came to the surface.

I was smoking a cigarette. I lighted another and, leaning from my car window with a smile, I offered it to a soldier standing on the platform beneath me.

He did not respond, and with a shrug I offered my cigarette to his neighbor. With a sheepish grin he accepted it. I saw another hand raised; then another.

"Bring me all the packets of cigarettes I have amongst my provisions." I whispered to my General. "Before going to bed I want these sulky Bolsheviks to cheer me, long and loud!"

On trips to hospitals we always carry supplies of cigarettes, and my General promptly carried out my order, bringing box after box.

There I stood at my window, pitching little packets of them to that growling, hostile crowd. My smiles were so guileless and my friendliness so diverting that gradually a sense of comradeship spread about that none could resist. It became a glorious game, I throwing, they catching, both sides rippling with fun!

When I had thrown upward of two hundred packets my provisions were at an end. With a bread grin I held up my empty hands. I knew no Russian words, but they understood my pantomime.

Then, as with one thought, all raised their voices and cheered me thunderously—the same men who the day before had torn down and destroyed my portrait in the station room!

JAPS FEAR U. S. PLANS FOR WAR

Charge America Expands the Army, Navy and Air Forces While Talking Peace

Tokyo, April 23 (A.P.).—That the United States, while pretending to advocate general disarmament throughout the world, is in reality planning tremendous military and naval expansion, is the opinion of many Japanese.

The Chugai, largest commercial newspaper in Japan, commenting on the United States measures for enlarging its air forces, is disturbed by the thought that America may soon be supreme in aerial armament.

"Such a plan (the reported increase in the air service) must be taken as a manifestation of positive militarism by America," declares the editorial, "rather than as a preparation for national defense."

The Chugai expresses profound regret at America's alleged armament plans and fears that if they are continued they may provoke a menace to the peace of the world.

The editorial advises Japan to work quietly for the strengthening of national power and to exert extraordinary efforts to maintain her special position in the Far East.

WIFE BEATER WILL GET NINE WHIPPINGS

Baltimore, April 23 (Universal)—James H. Kinnamon announced that he is ready to be whipped nine times for beating his wife. He withdrew the appeal to the Court of Appeals, which had been filed after he was sentenced to Judge Eugene Dunn to be lashed to pay a fine of five dollars and to serve six months in jail.

The whipping will be administered shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, but as yet no date for the event has been set. Kinnamon, who was convicted of kicking his wife as she lay on the floor in the street, Kinnamon, a carpenter, is married and has a family. He is forty-two years old, is the first white man to be punished at the whipping post in Maryland for wife-beating in a number of years.

SALEM HIGH DEBATERS RECEIVED BY COOLIDGE

Washington, April 23 (A.P.)—The high school debating team of Salem, Mass., was presented to President Coolidge today by Representative Andrew Massachusetts. The team convinced of kissing his wife as she lay on the floor in the street. Kinnamon, a carpenter, is married and has a family. He is forty-two years old, is the first white man to be punished at the whipping post in Maryland for wife-beating in a number of years.

OPTIMISM NEED OF BUSINESS JUDGE SAYS

New England Manufacturers' Representatives Hosts at Annual Dinner

Stressing the need of optimism and cheerfulness in the daily business routine, Judge H. H. Wells of Dedham, N. J., principal speaker at the fourth annual trade dinner of the New England Association of Manufacturers' Representatives, established the point of his remarks with a 30-minute barrage of wit and raillery that brought gales of laughter from his 400 hearers at the Chamber of Commerce Building.

He said that lack of confidence prevented many men from attaining success in business, adding that "there are too many lightweights in the country today who are unwilling to take a chance on heavyweight jobs."

"This ceaseless criticism of the younger generation is in my opinion much undeserved," he said. "They are just as good as you and I were at their age. The only fault I can find with them is that they are softer and not in a fit mood to proceed. Nevada is to encourage graduates after a $1000 a year job with the expectation of getting the money before he does the work."

Frank F. Barrows, president, delivered a message of welcome.

Among the invited guests were E. T. Dodge, secretary of the New England Grocers' Manufacturers' Association; W. A. Mann, secretary of the Boston Food Brokers' Association; J. H. Brown of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association; J. S. Murphy of Boston; E. L. Webster president of the Boston Retail Grocers; F. L. Howard of the New York Journal; W. L. Sweet, past president of the American Retail Grocers' Specialty Manufacturers, and Andrew Ross, the first president; A. C. England, president of Boston Wholesale Grocers' Association; F. Hanson of Boston and F. E. Wills secretary of Massachusetts Retail Grocers' Association.

W. Edgar Riley led the persons tatives in community singing, accompanied by Louis Weir, organist.

Rules Street Car Is "Vehicle" in Rum Case

A trolley car is a vehicle in the eyes of the law, Judge Joseph H. Barnes ruled in East Boston court today in the case of Mrs. Eva Spival, of Chelsea, arrested as she left a trolley.

A bag that the woman carried contained a gallon of liquor, the police said, and they charged her with illegal transportation and keeping and exposing.

Attorney J. J. Hamburg, her counsel argued the trolley car was not a vehicle in the eyes of the law as the defendant had no control over it. Judge Barnes overruled him and fined the woman $100 on each count. She appealed.

NORTHAMPTON 'Y' WORKER VANISHES; SUICIDE FEARED

Northampton, April 23 (A.P.)—Police were asked today to aid in a search for George Benjamin King, aged 26, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A., here, missing since yesterday noon. It is feared his mind may become unbalanced by overwork. A theory of suicide is advanced, police say, by the fact that King had recently taken out $1000 insurance, fully paid up, with his mother, Mrs. N. L. King of Ludington, Mich., as beneficiary. King intended to leave for Cleveland, O., May 15, to visit his fiance and planned to be married in September. He was last seen in Easthampton walking toward the railroad station.

QUAKER RUNNERS SHATTER RELAY MEET RECORD

TEAM SETS NEW MARK AT PHILLY

Princeton, Winners Last Year, Finish Third With Nittany Lions Second

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 23 (A.P.).—The University of Pennsylvania's crack quartet of sprinters carried of the first Intercollegiate relay title when they sped to victory in the quarter-mile championship in the new carnival record time of 42 seconds, beating the Princeton team, which won the even last year and set the previous record of 42 2-5 seconds.

Princeton could do no better than third place, being nosed out by Penn State in a contest which was decided by the best times for three heats. Columbia won one of these heats, with Ohio State second, but their times were not good enough to place in the final rating. The time of Penn's team, composed of Weisiger, Scull, McDonald and Wolf, was within one-tenth second of the world's record.

Although there were 16 entries only three started in the 400-metre hurdle special, which John Gibson, Fordham crack won, handily by five yards from Tanner of Occidental College, Los Angeles. Tanner closed with a rush which carried him past Littlefield of Stanford, but not sufficient to catch Gibson.

HANDBALL EXPERTS MEET IN SEMI-FINALS TODAY

Cleveland, O., April 23 (A.P.).—The semi-finals in the national Y. M. C. A. handball tournament were played today. Pairings were A. Hobelman, Baltimore, against Joe Goudreau, Cleveland; A. Schaufel berger, Detroit, and Stanley Spiegel, Detroit; Lloyd Walker, Toledo, and Harry Goldman, Cleveland, and Fred Beyerd, Cleveland, and George Nelson, Baltimore.

The first round doubles got under way today.

3,000 ATHLETES MEET IN DRAKE COMPETITION

Des Moines, Ia., April 23.—John L. Griffith, western conference athletic commissioner, who founded the Drake University meet in 1910, while he was athletic head at Drake, was here today to fire the first gun in the 18th annual renewal of the event. He is starter for the meet.

Nearly 3,000 university, high school and college athletes from 1,000 institutions in every section of the country will participate and most of them had arrived at noon today.

CHAPMAN IS DENIED SHOT AT TITLE

New York, April 23 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission has rejected the petition of Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird, Md., featherweight, as challenger for a title fight in the Queensboro Stadium on June 1.

In this instance Johnny Dundee, who is matchmaker for Garcia, was compelled by an injunction to step.

The commission, ending a season of Tex Rickard's stops to promote a fight, announced opposition would not be tolerated. Chairman Bertie Feathers, eight, on the ground that a champion fold is better for prestige than an outside contender last week.

Tommy Burns of Detroit was approved by the commission as opponent for Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., in a light heavyweight bout at Ebbets Field on May 21. Burns' name was submitted several days ago by Promoter Humbert Fugazy as a substitute for Al Singer of Philadelphia.

Chick Suggs, bantam of New Bedford, Mass., was indefinitely suspended for failure to answer a commission summons.

CALIFORNIAN CAPTURES BRITISH GOLF TITLE

Sunningdale Berkshire, England, April 23 (A.P.).—Douglas Grant, native Californian who has long lived in England, won the Surrey County golf championship today.

He eliminated Roger Wethered, the former British amateur champion, by 6 up and 4 to play in the semi-final round, in which he gave a splendid performance. In the final he defeated Major S. K. Thorburn, the match ending on the nineteenth green.

GREB TO FACE CONQUEROR ON MAY 27

New York, April 23 (A.P.).—Negotiations were concluded today for a 15-round middleweight championship fight on May 27 at Madison Square Garden between Tiger Flowers, Georgia blue-blooded, and Harry Greb of Pittsburgh. Both boxers have signed contracts, Matchmaker Jess McMahon announced.

McMahon said the match was clinched today through the acceptance of terms by Greb, who lost the title to the Georgia boxer on February 24, 1926. At that time Flowers agreed to defend his newly-won laurels within three months and to give Greb the first championship bout, provided he came to terms with the Garden promoters.

Brown Victor

Lowell, April 23.—Three eight-round bouts were held at Crescent Rink. Joseph Holland of Salem was knocked out in the third round by Al Dupelme of Lawrence. Bill Brady of Woburn defeated Tommy Clayton of Boston. Bobby Brown of Lowell won from Frankie Moore of this city.

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET

by TAD — America's Greatest Boxing Authority

THIS is the twenty-sixth of a series of famous fights covered by Tad, ...in this country. Tad has covered all the big fights held in this country for the past thirty years. In this review of prominent battles he will tell not alone of championships, but will refreshen the memories of many fans who have witnessed thrilling contests in the smaller clubs.

Neil, Murphy, and Blood

With their faces covered with blood, still fighting like tigers, Frankie Neil and Tommy Murphy finished one of the most exciting six-round fights ever seen in Philadelphia on the night of September 1, 1904. Not a minute of the battle was spent in idleness, and the cheers of the big crowd filled the clubhouse and drowned the sound of the bell at the end of every round.

The gong rang and they went to it. Just as soon as they met there was a mix and both fell into a clinch. Neil broke away and began fighting away with both hands at Murphy's body.

The latter wrapped his arms around his head and, curling up, evaded the onslaught of the champion. Neil, seeing that he could not land on the Harlemite in that position, stepped back until he assumed his fighting pose again.

As soon as he did Neil rushed him to the ropes, landing his left on the body and head and seeming to think that the fight would be over in a minute or so. Suddenly Murphy opened up with a right swing followed by a left, both of which landed squarely on the point of Neil's jaw, sending him reeling five or six feet backwards. Just as soon as the crowd saw Neil stagger there was wild cheering, and Murphy went tearing after his man like a wild man. There was a terrible mix-up when he got to Neil, both slugging like mad, Neil's mouth bleeding and blood running down Murphy's chin from his nose.

In the second round Neil stepped to the centre preparing for a careful plan of baffle and seeming to wait until an opening for the left presented itself. While he was walking around the crouching Murphy a right, seeming to come from nowhere in particular, settled itself upon his jaw violently, and again the wild howls of the sports came up. Neil dropped his hands to his sides and let Murphy punch as he pleased, his head rocking from side to side, and the Murphy contingent yelling for their man to finish the champion.

Although Neil seemed to wobble a bit on his feet he smiled and, suddenly rushing in, he walloped Murphy unmercifully, cutting his eye and bleeding his nose. There seemed to be no let-up, and he punched his opponent all along the ropes on one side of the ring until he had evened matters up. As the gong sounded Murphy was doing his best to keep Neil away with his straight left jab.

Murphy opened the fourth with a new burst of speed and fought Neil punch for punch for almost half a minute. He landed right and left, as Neil did, first one reeling then the other, but neither could get in a punch hard enough to drop the other fellow.

The fifth was probably the hardest round of the fight. First one would get staggered by a wallop and then the other. Neil was the first to start the punch-fest, chasing Murphy to his corner and pasting him until the blood spurted from his nose. Murphy straightened up, slashed out with a right, sending Neil back about six feet, and then went after him.

The crowd was standing on chairs howling like mad and expecting any minute to see one or the other drop. Murphy's uppercut seemed to be effective, and in a neutral corner he slashed Neil again on the chin, staggering him. As soon as the little champion regained his position he went at Murphy like a bull, sending him against the ropes and punching him fiercely about the body. The gong sounded as both were fighting along the ropes.

The sixth and last round was a hummer, too, both boys using their best punches and trying hard to land a knockout. Neil cut the smile out and Murphy let go of the crouch. There was mixing all through the three minutes, Neil always forcing Murphy, but stopped some pretty tough wallops in doing so. He shifted on Murphy, feinted him, fell to clinches and tried all sorts of things to get Tommy's guard high, but there was nothing doing, so he took the chance of slugging out a win and went to it hard.

Murphy was there like old Trinity himself, and as there were only a few minutes left neither seemed to fear a knockout, but went at it like tigers. It was slam bang all the way. The gloves were covered with blood, and those around the ring got their share of it, too. No faster mixing was ever seen since or before, and when the gong sounded the referee had to pull the little fellow apart.

JERSEY BACKS TEX RICKARD

Trenton, N. J., April 23 (I.N.S.).—Jack Dempsey may be matched for a championship bout in New Jersey with any worthy opponent and it will not be necessary that he first meet Harry Wills, negro contender, Newton A. K. Bugbee, boxing commissioner, announced today.

Not only will Dempsey be allowed to meet Gene Tunney, if a bout is arranged, but Commissioner Bugbee does not believe it a functional of a boxing commission to dictate who a boxer must fight. The only condition which the commissioner sees necessary is that Dempsey's opponent must be able to furnish an interesting contest. Imposition of this condition means, of course, he said, that the opponent will have to possess the ability to furnish a contest.

The statement was prompted by the reports that Tex is said to be dickering with Dempsey and that Tunney will likely be selected as his opponent.

FIVE BOUTS AT LYNN TOURNEY MONDAY

The Casino A. C. of Lynn will stage its usual weekly program of all-star bouts next Monday night with a card of three eights and two six-round bouts.

K. O. Liberty of Lawrence, welterweight champion of Maine, will meet Red Griffin of Chelsea in the featured bout.

Harold Ellershaw of Brockton will meet Matty Cordes of Lynn in an eight rounder and Jimmy McGonigle of Weymouth and Kid Alberts of Portsmouth, N. H., will be pitted in the other eight.

TIGERS WHIP BRITISH LACROSSE TEAM, 7 TO 1

Princeton, N. J., April 23.—Princeton defeated a game but crippled Oxford-Cambridge lacrosse team, 7 to 1, here. The Englishmen were greatly handicapped by the absence of even a single substitute.

Captain Melland scored the only British goal early in the final half when an odd-man play gave him the ball on the edge of the crease.

Northeastern opens its outdoor track season tomorrow afternoon in a meet against Rhode Island State, at Kingston.

McGRATH OFFERS MALONEY'S CONTRACT FOR $10,000

IRON CLAD DOCUMENT ON MARKET

Red Chapman's Hollow Victory Over Herbie Schaefer Fails to Impress Fans

By JACK CONWAY.

JOHNNY McGRATH stated today he would sell Jim Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, and his five-year contract for $10,000.

The New York Boxing Commission has ruled that McGrath a contract with Maloney is ironclad. The Massachusetts Boxing Commission is expected to do the same.

The contract was signed eight days after Maloney became of age. Prior to it being signed McGrath had another contract with Maloney, but as Jim was a minor when the first document was signed it could have been set aside.

John Conway

Maloney wants to fight again, but he insists that he will remain in retirement if McGrath is going to be enriched one cent by selling his contract. Maloney would like to be declared a free agent and then have Frank Hussey act as his business representative.

Meanwhile, McGrath is marking time. He knows there are not any loopholes in his contract with Maloney and that Jim will either have to remain idle or accept his terms.

In 1924 Maloney, at the time a boxing novice, pulled down $15,000 in purses, while he gathered in $48,000 last year. He announced his retirement from the ring after he was defeated by Jack Sharkey in December but it appears that the statement at that time was merely part of his plan to try to get rid of McGrath as manager.

McGrath is still in the manager's seat and won't surrender it unless Maloney or somebody else pays him $10,000. Meanwhile, Johnny says he is willing to go out and book matches for Dynamite Jim provided the latter believes he can get a greater thrill out of an honest-to-goodness fight than he can out of selling fish or dabbling in real estate.

THE commonplace in today recovering from watching Herbie Schaefer's dismal showing against Red Chapman at a Commercial Club show at Mechanics Building Referee Jack Sheehan stopped the massacre in the fourth round, when Schaefer, at the best a fair semi-final boy, was bleeding freely from a cut over the left eye and suffering from the effects of heavy punches to the head and body.

TERRY PARKER of the North End was awarded the decision over Rocky Devine of Maine in the semi-final of six rounders. The gallery gods let loose a frightful squawk when the verdict was rendered.

HAGEN HASSEN, another one of those Terrible Turks, polished off Rocky Stone, Pine Hill avenue Tiger, in the sixth round.

WHO'LL BID FOR JIM?

Jim Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, whose manager has offered his contract for sale for $10,000. The question now is, who'll bid for his pugilistic services?

CASEY POSSIBLE HORWEEN AIDE

Coach Arnold Horween of the Harvard football team will reach the Hub today from Chicago. Horween will issue the first official call for football men on Monday. Until that time the new Harvard coach will be kept busy with minor details.

The names of the assistants to Horween are not known and will not be made public until Monday. If they are ready then. On Monday Athletic Director Bill Bingham is due to return to Cambridge and the pair will have some long sessions before the final announcement is made.

Harvard athletic followers expect that Horween will have a Western man for one assistant. Another possibility is Dana Casey, former head coach at Tufts. Those selected by Bingham and Horween will have to secure the approval of the athletic committee.

LEGION BOOKS RING TOURNEY

A campaign to raise a bond guarantee of $20,000 for the annual Summer boxing carnival of the Crossman-Tobin Post, American Legion, was inaugurated at a meeting of the post members at the City Club today. Twenty-four teams will start work rounding immediately in an effort to duplicate the success of last year's carnival.

State Commander Francis J. Good complimented the members on the showing of their post and declared that their efforts have served as a stimulus to all other legion posts in the state. The Massachusetts Boxing Commission spoke highly of the work done by the post and promised the co-operation of the commission.

George Wiswell was appointed general manager of the carnival the proceeds of which will be used for continuing the regular work of the post and for the establishment of permanent headquarters.

VACCA GETS BIG CHANCE IN GO WITH GENARO

Johnny Vacca of Brighton has reached the vital stage of his career. After next Monday night the local flyweight will be either the most discussed boy in the country or he will have to start again at the foot of the ladder. Vacca's future all hinges on the outcome of his bout Monday night arranged by the Arena Club at the local rink with Frankie Genaro of New York, former national flyweight champion and two time winner over the late Pancho Villa.

Very few boys have been favored with the chance that is before Vacca. If he defeats Genaro, Johnny is in a position to demand a match with Fidel La Barba for the flyweight championship of the world. This is Vacca's great ambition and judging by the spirited work he is displaying in his daily workouts at Kelley and Hayes' Gym the local boy will be right in edge for this important bout Monday night.

If confidence means anything the young Brighton boy will carry on at a winning clip against the shifty and brilliant Genaro. It was this cocky spirit that prompted Matchmaker George Freeman to select Vacca to send against the New York Italian. Johnny needs no introduction to Boston fight followers regarding his ability to make the going interesting. Vacca is a busy little body once the bell rings. He flays away with right and lefts varying with some straight leads.

Matchmaker Freeman is pyramiding his surrounding card, has chosen four meritorious bouts. Eddie Williams of East Boston will tackle Bobby Mays of New Bedford.

Charley Donovan of South Boston battles Tommy Clayton of the West End in the other six-round bout.

Ray Cross of Milford has a chance to atone for his only defeat since he joined the pro ranks when he meets Willie Nelson of Brockton in a return engagement slated for eight rounds.

Boxing Bosses Quarrel Over Rickard's Defiance

New York, April 23 (I.N.S.)—The rumble of war circulated through boxing circles today as the result of Tex Rickard's signing with Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champ, for at least one big-time bout in New Jersey, but no explosion was expected, if any, until the return of Rickard to New York tomorrow morning.

The New York State Athletic Commission, with a threatened split within its ranks regarding Rickard's defiance of Commissioner James Farley's stated preference for Harry Wills as a title contender, will cross-examine Rickard at length. Farley has announced he will not countenance a Tunney-Dempsey match and intimated dire reprisals if his wish is flouted.

William Muldoon, another Commissioner, is equally emphatic in his objection to a Wills-Dempsey bout. The third commissioner, George B. Brower, declares he has an open mind on both subjects.

Navy Oarsmen Hope to Beat M. I. T.

Annapolis, Md., April 23 (A.P.)—Cold weather, and high winds that have been kicking up rough water in the Severn River all Spring, have set back Coach Harry Butler's Navy crews in their training.

Nevertheless, the Midshipmen are confident of a good showing in their opening tests tomorrow against the junior varsity and varsity crews of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a regatta that marks the start of the eastern rowing season.

Butler, a former University of Washington oarsman, believes the varsity crew, which now averages 178 pounds, to be about five pounds to the man overweight. There is an advantage to this, however, which will be felt later in the long preparation for the annual championship pull at Poughkeepsie, for at that time the crew will be able better to stand the grind of training in warm weather.

The famous "slender stroke," that has been a feature in many Navy victories and championships of the past has been revamped by Butler. The long sweep developed by the former mentor, with its easy and deep back stretch, has been replaced by a shorter, snappier pull in vogue with western crews. Increased speed and power have been added as the blades catch the water. The changes made so far have altered visibly the appearance of the Navy crews on the Severn.

Butler has for his first crew eight husky, rangy oarsmen of ideal build for grueling work. Replacements available from the junior varsity, however, having been disappointing, four veterans of last year's championship eight again are in the varsity shell. Tom Eddy, stroker; W. C. Eddy at No. 3, Captain Sylvester at No. 2 and Eatzen at No. 7 form the nucleus.

Coxswain Seabring, who called the stroke last year, is back in the steering seat. Elliott, in the bow, stroked the junior varsity last season, while Broadbent at No. 2 and Badanovitch at No. 5 came up from the plebe crew. Horn, at No. 4, has been rowing three years, but was replaced in the boat last year during the major races because of scholastic difficulties.

Coach Bill Haines arrived at the academy Monday with the varsity and junior varsity eights of Massachusetts Tech to prepare for the regatta tomorrow. The two events will be run over the Henley distance of 1 1-16 miles.

Boston Icemen Bowling in N.Y.

The bowling team of the Boston Ice Company will compete with American Ice Company teams from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington in the thirteenth inter-city bowling tournament tomorrow afternoon at the scenation Alleys, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The intercity tournament is an annual event of the American Ice and subsidiary companies. Each city will be represented by two teams of five men each and the winning team will be privileged to hold the silver cup which is at present in the hands of the Philadelphia team.

Chicago, April 23 (A.P.)—The entry list for the Central A. A. U. annual indoor track and field championships here tonight includes a number of stars despite the attraction of the Drake and Pennsylvania meets to be held this week-end.

Among the athletes who specialize on the boards and who will compete tonight are Hal Osborn, Lorin Murchison and Ray Dodge. They will wear the Illinois A. C colors.

JOHNNY SHEPPARD TO BOX McLARIN MAY 4

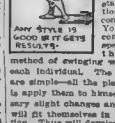
Johnny Sheppard, Woburn featherweight, is on his way to the Pacific coast, where he will box Jimmy McLarin in the semi-final to the ten-round bout between Fidel LaBarba and Emil Paluso on May 4. Sheppard is now boxing under the direction of Leo Flynn. Paluso is also in the Flynn outfit.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 21 Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

In golf, as I have said often previously, the swing is everything. Hitting the ball is incidental. Without a good swing the ball cannot be effectively hit. Therefore cultivate the swing and forget the ambition to smite the ball. If the swing is right it will do that, not all your force. The swing is in something like a state of perfection when it becomes automatic. You do it unconsciously, so to speak. Moreover, there is one method of swinging which best fits each individual. The fundamentals are simple—all the player has to do is apply them to himself. The necessary slight changes and adjustments will fit themselves in with his execution. Thus will develop his own particular style. Any style is a good style so long as it adheres to the general fundamentals and gets results. I shall try in subsequent articles to show the simplicity of the swing.



Any STYLE IS GOOD IF IT GETS RESULTS.

M'GUIRE GETS READY FOR STRANGLER

Ned McGuire, Irish heavyweight wrestler, has started intensive training for his finish mat bout, best two out of three, with Strangler Lewis, holder of the championship belt, which will be staged by Paul Bowser at the Boston Arena next Thursday night.

It will be the third meeting between McGuire and Lewis. In their first skirmish, McGuire won a one-hour handicap match when the strangler failed to toss him. In the second encounter McGuire scored with a fall and then lost the match on a foul when he counted with a right to the jaw.

Wrestling fans consider McGuire one of the most promising grapplers in the country. He is a big, powerful fellow and is blessed with a world of courage. He continues to improve with each match as he proved when he won over Toots Mondt at the Tuohey testimonial.

Lewis is eager to win over McGuire in decisive style and continues his drive to prove he is the king of the heavyweight division. The strangler recently won an easy victory over Wayne (Big) Munn in Chicago.

Work to Begin at Once on Stadium for Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 23 (I.N.S.).—Plans for a new stadium that will accommodate upwards of 78,000 persons and to cost $1,500 000 were announced today by the board of regents of the University of Michigan. Work will begin at once. A bond issue will be floated to finance the project, it was stated.

CREW MEN PAY HONOR TO VETERAN REFEREE

New York, April 23.—Several hundred of the 1,200 living Harvard and Yale crew men have made reservations for the joint banquet to be held tonight in the Hotel Biltmore in honor of William A. Mathieson, veteran referee, according to Robert F. Herrick of Harvard and Frederic W. Allen of Yale, heading the committees in charge.

This is the first time in the history of the two universities that the rival athletes have gathered for a common purpose. Mathieson has refereed the Harvard-Yale boat races at New London nearly every year for thirty-five years.

One of New England's best mills takes their odd yarn and converts it into a fabric outside of their regular line. Made up in conservative colors, they are suitings that I can thoroughly recommend, both for wear and shape, and I want all Mitchell's old customers to get in on this purchase.

In these days of Bargain Basements, where customers are inclined to grab for merchandise and take what they can get, I consider it refreshing to think that you can walk into my store and get service, being assured of a fit whether you are 36 breast or 56, with the understanding that the price is to be as low as $12.75. Whether you are lame, hunchback, round shouldered, high, square shouldered or regular, this price on these fabrics prevail.

They say I'm "fussy"

WELL, let that go. I'm ready to admit that so far as pipe tobacco is concerned, I've got ideas. And if insisting on a tobacco that won't bite the tongue or parch the throat is "being fussy," you can write "guilty" alongside my name, and I won't even appeal the charge.

I can't speak for anybody else, but personally I smoke for pleasure! So I smoke Prince Albert. I'll say I do. Right after breakfast, on up until I switch off the light for the night. Pipe-load after pipe-load. Day after day. Prince Albert treats my tongue as gently as a mother handles a brand-new baby.

They tell me it's the Prince Albert process that cuts out bite and parch. Fair enough. I'll testify before the well-known world that P. A. is the coolest, sweetest, most genuinely friendly smoke a fellow can get on this planet. You suspect that the minute you throw back the hinged lid on the tidy red tin and get a whiff of real tobacco.

Now, I'm telling you to be fussy about your smoking. Many a pipe-smoker has fooled himself when he should have been soothing himself with P. A. I say it pays to be fussy about anything that means so much to a man. What do you think?

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

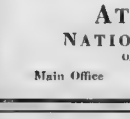
SAVE FOR A SUNNY DAY



No. 22

SOME youngsters are born with silver spoons in their mouths, and some have silver spoons thrust upon them. But if you want to make an undying hit with your prospective nephew (it may be a niece), put your congratulations into a First National savings book in the newcomer's name. Five dollars will start that account (a real bargain for god-fathers) and you'll have the satisfaction of starting that child on a life full of Sunny Days—which are far more useful than silver spoons. Any First National savings office will help you do the right thing in the grand manner.

LEE, HIGGINSON BOND OFFERING IS MADE

Lee, Higginson & Company and Ladenburg, Thalmann & Company have purchased and are offering to investors a new issue of $4,000,000 40-year 7½ per cent sinking Fund Gold Bonds of the City of Porto Alegre, Brazil.

Porto Alegre is the capital and chief city in both size and importance of the State of Rio Grande do Sul which guarantees the bonds unconditionally as to principal, sinking fund premium and interest. Rio Grande do Sul is Brazil's principal cattle and stock raising State, one of its first in manufacturing and value of imports and exports and its banks are the largest in total assets of any Brazilian state.

The City of Port Alegre is the eleventh largest in South America. It has an official property valuation of $61,890,000 and actual values are considered at least twice that official valuation. Ninety-eight per cent of its population is of European descent. Industries in the city include the operation of packing houses, export of hides, textile manufacturing, fruit and vegetable canning and manufacture of tobacco products. Porto Alegre in every year for the last twenty-five has POPULATION GROWTH OUTSTRIPPED EXPENDITURES

Semi-annual interest payable April 1 and October 1 in New York City without deduction for any normal Federal income tax up to 2% which the Company may be required or permitted to pay at the source. Redeemable as a whole or in part upon thirty days' published notice at 102½ and accrued interest, to and including April 1, 1927; thereafter at a premium decreasing ½ of 1% per each year. $500 and $1,000 coupon debentures with privilege of registration as to principal only.

THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee

Pennsylvania Four Mill Tax, Connecticut Four Mill Tax, Maryland Four and One-half Mill Tax, District of Columbia Five Mill Tax, Vermont Four Mill Tax, New Hampshire Income Tax up to Four Percent and Massachusetts Six Percent Income Tax refunded (on application within sixty days after fixed annual payment thereof) to holders resident in those jurisdictions who have paid such taxes.

Mr. R. B. Maltby, Vice-President of the Company, summarizes his letter to us as follows:

Business: St. Regis Paper Company was organized under the laws of New York State in 1899. The Company is one of the largest producers of paper in the Eastern United States, having an annual output of over 140,000 tons of various grades, consisting of directory, catalog, newsprint, manila wrapping, packer's wax and grease-proof paper.

The properties of St. Regis Paper Company are located in Northern New York State, a region advantageous for the conduct of the business by reason of its abundance of water power and its proximity both to the source of raw materials and to the great markets of Eastern United States. The Company controls large resources of pulp wood, both Canadian and domestic, sufficient, it is estimated, to supply its entire requirements for more than twenty years.

Earnings: The earnings of the St. Regis Paper Company for the twelve months ended December 31, 1925, show a gross income of $9,175,651, and a net income available for interest after depreciation, but before Federal tax, of $1,209,882, or over 4 times the annual interest requirements on these Debentures. For the past six years such income has averaged over 3.6 times these requirements.

Investments: St. Regis Paper Company owns 727,660 shares of the Common Stock of Northeastern Power Corporation, which in turn owns over 99% of the Common Stock of The Power Corporation of New York, the entire capital stock of the Oswego River Power Corporation, and 234,289 Common Shares of the New England Power Association.

The properties controlled by The Power Corporation of New York and the New England Power Association are inter-connected by high tension transmission lines with the properties of the Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation and the Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern Power Corporation, thereby creating a super-power transmission system extending from Buffalo to Boston.

Balance Sheet: Following is a summarized balance sheet compiled from audit by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants, as of December 31, 1925, adjusted to give effect to this financing:

The Company will agree to reimburse the holders of these Notes, if requested within 60 days after payment, for the Pennsylvania 4 Mills and Maryland 4½ Mills taxes, for the Connecticut Personal Property taxes not exceeding 4 Mills per $1.00 per annum, and for the Massachusetts income tax on the interest not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum.

Unconditionally guaranteed as to prompt payment of Principal, Interest and Sinking Fund by William Randolph Hearst

For detailed information regarding these Notes, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Roy D. Keehn, President, from which the following is summarized:

Business: The Evening American Publishing Company, an Illinois corporation, publishes the Chicago Evening American, which has the largest paid circulation of any afternoon and evening daily newspaper in Chicago. Although selling at 3c a copy, this paper for the last several years has had the largest circulation, regardless of price, of any Chicago evening newspaper. During the past two years the volume of advertising has increased by 20%, a greater growth than shown by any other evening newspaper in Chicago. Average daily paid circulation taken from independent sources shows an increase from 399,716 copies in the calendar year 1923, to 537,487 copies for the period ended March 21, 1926.

Security: The Notes will be the direct obligation of the Evening American Publishing Company and in addition will be unconditionally guaranteed as to the prompt payment of principal, interest, and sinking fund by William Randolph Hearst.

Earnings: The Company's net profits before deducting interest paid, but after all taxes and depreciation, as certified by independent auditors, have averaged for the three years ended December 31, 1925, $1,350,193. Annual interest on the Company's funded debt to be presently outstanding requires $188,060.

Sinking Fund: The Company will retire annually beginning April 1, 1928, $250,000 principal amount of these Notes, either by purchase at not exceeding the prevailing call price or by redemption by lot at the then prevailing call price. This Sinking Fund will retire $750,000 principal amount of these Notes prior to maturity.

Management: The management of the Evening American Publishing Company will continue in charge of the men who have been responsible for the success of the Chicago Evening American. All of the outstanding capital stock of the Company, except directors' qualifying shares, is owned by William Randolph Hearst who operates a publishing business consisting of a chain of newspapers serving from coast to coast 16 of the important cities of the United States, and a group of nationally known magazines.

considerable community from Azusa and Clermont, near Los Angeles, to Brawley in the south, magnificent schools, on the main highways, each with a park around it. Perfect schools and playgrounds for all the children.

HERE, to the glory of California, schools come first, everything else second. The City Hall is perhaps one-third the size of the principal high school. And as for the prison, if there happens to be one, you could tuck it away in some corner of the school where children leave their coats and hats.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS here and elsewhere in the United States will wipe out prisons, as sunshine cures disease.

Times have changed since Carlyle complained that on a long journey to Edinburgh he passed many impressive jails, not one public library. Of public schools there was then no question.

"MARKET CLOSED strong." Was the good-night message of big Wall Street and the little Wall Streets throughout the country when business closed yesterday. Somebody bought more than 1,700,000 shares in the day and little lambs, recently frightened by the "sold-out-bulls" into throwing their stocks overboard know more in April than they did in January, as is usual with lambs.

DON'T GAMBLE. You can't win at that. Study values in stocks, real estate or anything in the United States. Buy with judgment, within your means, HOLD ON, and you can't help getting richer each year than you were the year before. This is a prosperous country, these are prosperous times.

GOLF PROFESSIONALS say brown-eyed men and women play better than those with blue or gray eyes.

John Ball has won more championships than anybody else and has brown eyes.

That may be true. However, gray-eyed men shoot better with a rifle than others. Light-eyed men—although it annoys excellent persons to say so—are the world's principal thinkers. Take one hundred of the world's really greatest men. You wouldn't find ten, probably not two, among them with brown or black eyes.

NEVERTHELESS, MANY brown-eyed men are infinitely superior to millions of blue and gray eyed men.

The golf statement may be explained by the fact that blue-eyed men would concentrate on something more profitable than winning golf championships. They are interesting, not remunerative.

IF ANNOYED by the statement about dark and light eyes, remember the saying, "Strike but hear me." As you think of great Americans, great names come to mind, Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Edison, Lee, Andrew Jackson, John D. Rockefeller, all with blue or gray eyes.

A NEW ROYAL BABY in England, two days old, is doing well, also her father and mother, Duke and Duchess of York; her uncle, the Prince of Wales, and her grandfather, King George.

That child, like her great, great grandmother, Queen Victoria, may be Queen of England, Empress of India. Her name probably will be Elizabeth, but she would be a different Elizabeth from one that Henry the Eighth gave to England.

THE BRITISH manage well with their royalty, as well as bees that keep their queen for breeding, feed her well, never let her interfere.

Here we prefer to think that we govern ourselves. But whether it is better to imagine that you govern yourselves, while well organized big business really governs you, or, as in England, with a King to imagine that he governs, while you really govern him, time will tell.

HINDOOS AND MOHAMMEDANS were again rioting in Calcutta yesterday, throwing bricks, using knives. They hate each other for religious reasons, Mohammedans don't eat pork, Hindoos do not eat beef.

Britons eat beef AND pork, and rule Hindoos AND Mohammedans, and the latter fighting each other make British rule easy.

THAT SEEMS amusing in our proud democracy, but we have an imitation of it here, working men too often fight each other, instead of sticking together. Union men despise non-union men, workmen in the Democratic party who don't know why they are Democrats fight at the polls against workmen in the Republican party who don't know why they are Republicans.

And high finance, which is the imperial government in America, as Britain is the imperial government in India, runs things easily.

Brother sticks to brother, in high finance.

ONE WOMAN SOLVES RENT PROBLEM

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

By MARTHA LEE
BUDGET TALK NUMBER 33

"The rent allowances you make are ridiculous! Do you expect people to live in dives? Why don't you try it yourself?" writes one wrathful man, referring, I believe, to a budget which called for $4 weekly for shelter out of a $25 income.

Thank you, Mr. Man, for opening my eyes to the necessity for a fu explanation of some of these budget figures. For instance, in the budget to which he refers the family for whom this $4 a week shelter budget was made, lives by way in the northern part of New Hampshire, where an extremely comfortable little home is available at the figure I have named.

I realize that it would be extremely difficult to find such a rent in the city. However, when the total income is $25 for all in the family, they must eat and be clothed, isn't it better to recommend a thorough search for a lower rent than to starve body and soul in order to keep up appearances?

One of the wisest women I ever knew was a girl who married a boy recently graduated from college shortly after she had left a fashionable young ladies' school. Accustomed to every luxury but independence enough to want to live on his earnings, tolerant lover as he was, he refused family aid. The girls found a four big sunny rooms without mahogany, modern conveniences within a stone's throw of the Upham's Corner market district, with a rent of $16 a month. One of her first possessions was a savings bank book. And to cut the story short, within five years I visited her in a pretty suburban home which she was rapidly paying for. Today her prosperity is the marvel and envy of friends who started out far more pretentiously. I don't often preach, but I think here's a moral to adorn the tale.

Twenty per cent. of the total family income is usually apportioned to shelter without heat. This must include business and school carfares, since it is the location of the home that makes these necessary.

If you are living in a heated apartment, you can deduct half of your operating budget and add it to your rent, if you wish, as this amount would have been used for coal.

The essentials in choosing your home, no matter what your income, are those things that make life safe, physically, mentally and morally: sunshine, light, good water, proper sanitation and drainage, good sweep of air, clean streets, sidewalks and gutters, and honest, cleanminded neighbors.

Next week we will take up the shelter problem for those who are buying their own homes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

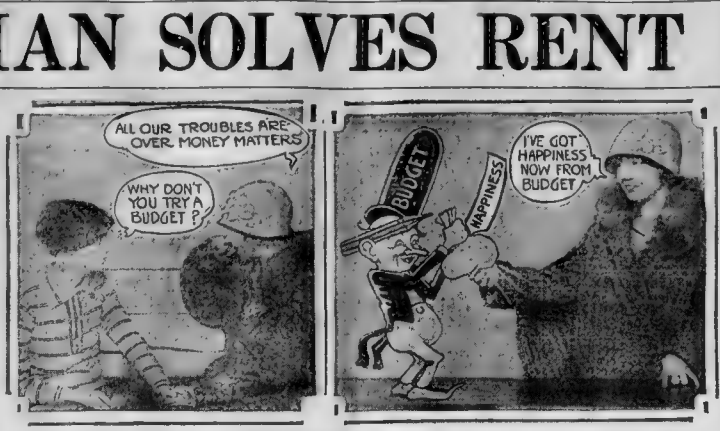
Mrs. I. M. S. has $50 a week to budget for a family of 2 adults and 3 children. The rent is $35, $1.50 a week on Christmas Club; $15 a month on an unpaid bill until May 1; $12 for food, $1.47 for milk; $1.32, insurance; $2.50 a month for gas; 50 cents to $1.50 a week for electricity (she has a quarter electric meter—wish I did); uses 8 tons of coal a year; has two insurances, totalling $10.32 quarterly; lodge dues, $18 a year; pleasure, $2.50 a week; 75 cents for piano lesson. She says: "Please show me how to budget my savings so I may start paying on a doctor's bill the first of May. I also want a budget for—"

If you will send me your full name instead of initials I will gladly send the form. A $50 budget should give you savings $5, rent $10, food $12.50, clothing $7.50, operating $7.50 and personal $7.50. Husband's carfares to come out of rent money. Christmas club payments on the back bill and insurance to come out of the savings. Milk to be included in the food budget. Gas, electricity, water and coal come out of operating. Lodge dues, $3 for pleasure and piano lessons come out of personal.

You may want, no doubt, to pare the standard budget down to your special needs.

Mrs. C. P. R., who also has four in her family, divides $75 a week into rent $55 (unheated), $4.50 weekly insurance, $35 monthly payments on furniture, $18 monthly milk bill, $40 monthly food bill, $10 to motor for gas and telephone, $5 weekly carfare and lunches. You will find it more satisfactory to budget weekly incomes. Averaged up through the entire year. Of course for a $75 budget, shelter would be $45; food $8.00; clothing $2.50; operating $3.50; savings $2.10; personal $5.50. But you will need more money in your food allowance than this gives you and will have to pare it off your other items. Your extra earnings will raise all of these figures of course but the proportions are about right.

Don't hesitate to write me about your own special Budget problems. I am here to help YOU, and consider it a real pleasure and privilege. Address Home Budget Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.



Mr. Budget drives away troubles and brings happiness to those who follow his plans for the wise use of the pay envelope.

Food Preservation by Wire

GREETINGS, everybody!"

Did you ever stop to think how many unnumbered benefits and enjoyments come to your home and kitchen over an electric wire?

Judging from your letters, however, I think that we can safely say that the electric refrigerator holds the centre of the stage as the greatest electric marvel of the age.

I'm glad that so many of you have decided to make life more palatable by electrifying your present refrigerator or investing in the complete outfit, and I know that many more will follow suit when the advantages of this greatest of all home benefits is more thoroughly understood.

"Just what will an electric refrigerator do for me that my present ice chest won't?" writes one weary lady from Pittsfield, who is going to take a good, careful look before she leaps.

Well, firstly an electric refrigerator will make you, once and for all, independent of ice delivery. The freezing unit that can be placed in the ice chamber of your present refrigerator or purchased complete, installed in the ice chest of your choice, will maintain a temperature many degrees colder than ice. In this dry cold food deterioration practically stops, and even milk and the most perishable articles stay fresh and sweet for days.

Electrified refrigeration will simplify your marketing problems, too, for on one day you can buy foods for an entire week, secure in the knowledge that they will keep in perfect condition from the first of the week to the last in the crisp, frosty cold.

An interesting peculiarity of this dry cold is that it prevents the transference of odors and flavors. Fish, butter, lemons or any other foods (yes, even the much-abused cabbage) can be kept side by side.

And I mustn't forget the crystal cubes of ice, pure as your drinking water, that your electric refrigerator will constantly freeze for table use.

Another advantage not to be overlooked is that, since foods will keep in perfect condition so long in an electric refrigerator, a considerable saving is affected when Mother must be away for a few days.

All these savings, added to the fact that the cost of current for operating an ice-less ice chest is often as much as 50 per cent. less than the former ice bill, prove its economy. And the pride that you will take in showing your friends this last word in modern home equipment, is thrown in gratis.

I'm going to take a day next week to answer all the questions you care to ask on the subject that is interesting so many of you. So come one, come all. If in the meantime you would like me to send you more detailed information, just drop me a line. Service is my middle name—and it's a real pleasure.

Faithfully yours,

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Serial

By Ann Lisle

"I'LL go up to town and get him tomorrow," Jim said. "We'll see him through."

"It's a little too late, you are with your fine words," Pat said. "Lacy sailed today to join Betty Wiseman and the Hoadleys—as you very well know, Jim."

I felt Jim's arms loosen their hold and drew away from me as Pat made his sneering accusation that Jim knew Ralph Lacy had sailed this very day. I went suddenly cold. It was as if I had been lifted to a golden, sunny height and then flung over the side of a precipice into dark and icy regions.

Questions chased each other through my brain in a dizzy whirl. The questions were accusing. One of them found words.

"Have you known of Ralph's ill news for some time?" I asked.

"Since the day before the blizzard." Jim replied after a moment of hesitation.

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I forgot."

An ugly laugh escaped my lips as I said scornfully:

"You forgot. Would you have forgotten something that concerned you as much as this concerns me?"

"No, I suppose not," Jim answered humbly.

His gentleness took the edge off my anger. But Jeanie pointed it again as she asked scornfully:

"What would you do if Anne were more like other women of today, Jim? Suppose she gave you a Roland for your Oliver now and then as I earnestly advise her to do? Suppose she just quietly refused to accept your attitude toward Ralph, and reminded you of how tolerant she has had to be where the Ruth Gregorys and the Rosa Cordovas are concerned?"

Jim turned on Jeanie with a fury new to me and not undeserved:

"You're my sister all right! But just now it behooves you to be grateful that you have Anne to get you out of your messes and not to air and lecture me for the artistic leanings you have shown you share."

Pat chuckled. This, I am sure, was all that prevented the ugly quarrel Jim's tasteless words might so easily have projected. But it did not switch me from the main topic under discussion. And I asked coldly:

"Shall we drop the recriminations and the accusations for the moment and stick to the subject at hand? I want to know about Ralph. If he has sailed today to recuperate from a bad nervous breakdown, I feel that I've a right to inquire into the things all of you must have been fully aware of for the past week."

"The storm—my own troubles—the turmoil in this household—all those things came on top of the news. Is it any wonder I forgot to tell you?" muttered Jim.

"Ralph has been ordered away for a year," Jeanie said. "He is joining Betty and the Hoadleys. I wish he'd console himself and mend his broken heart——"

"His heart?" I protested. "I thought you said he had an attack of nerves——"

Jeanie's giggle interrupted me. But Pat spoke gravely:

"'Tis Jeanie wants to find the underlying romance sentimental women look for in such situations. 'Tis his heart that's gone bad. Overwork and overstrain, I would be calling it——"

"And I call it a broken heart," Jeanie cried hotly and even facetiously. "What's the use of mincing words now? We all know that Ralph adores Anne. And he has worked like a dog to forget her. It did not work. He is sick—sick unto death—ordered away for a year, and Anne doesn't so much as send him a steamer letter. That was what you wanted, Jim. You didn't want her to write to him. You pretend you're so generous—that you'd be willing to have him down here and have her nurse him. But the truth about you is you've kept Anne from so much as sending him a rose or a book or any of the attentions it would be decent for her to send. He's probably miserable over the way she let him go without a word——"

"If Lacy had wanted Anne to worry over him, he could have let her know—" Jim broke in, to be interrupted by Pat in turn.

"'Tis not your place to be lecturing Jim like this, Jeanie. It's sorry I am our Alanna did not know in time. But if Jim is after wanting his way, 'tis Alanna herself who can be telling him how she feels about it without us to be interrupting her to herself. And I'm thinking the best thing the two of us can do is to be making ourselves scarce and be taking ourself off to bed."

"Good idea. Good night," Jim said grimly.

"The Temptress" -:- By Ibanez

"The Temptress" is to be filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a special Cosmopolitan production.

CANTERAC, inspired by his desire to arouse the marquesa's interest in him, had invited her to ride on the river path. It would, he believed, give her a heightened estimate of him when she saw the work that was being carried out under his direction. She would realize then that he was the real manager of the enterprise, when she saw hundreds of men obeying him orders. . . .

Elena and the Frenchman were in the lead. Behind them rode Pirovani, Last of the cavalcade came the marquesa, Watson and Moreno.

As Elena and Canteras rode past Celinda the two women looked at one another. The marquesa smiled, as though eager to speak to the young girl; but with a childish frown, Celinda turned severe eyes on her.

"She's nothing but a girl," said Canteras, "a mischievous little imp, full of pranks — and, although she looks like a boy, I shouldn't wonder if she had it in her to turn any man's head. The people hereabouts call her Flor de Rio Negro."

Elena, offended by the girl's attitude, looked haughtily at her.

"Flor, perhaps," she commented, "but a little too wild!"

This brief conversation had been carried on in French so that Celinda caught but a few words of it; but it was easy to guess that the marquesa had said something disparaging.

The other riders then drew near, and the marques ceremoniously greeted the young girl.

Watson indicated by his manner that he intended riding on with the other members of the party and he pretended not to understand Celinda's perfectly obvious gestures.

She let him go on, though she wore an expression of childish annoyance. Suddenly, however, she repented of her meekness, and wheeled her horse and followed the group.

As she rode her right hand suddenly caught up the lasso from the front of the saddle and threw it at the american. Watson to escape rolling out of the saddle had to stop and turn his horse back. His companions rode on.

The thong still tight about his shoulders, Richard rode up to the girl. He was too much annoyed to free himself and ride away, better have it out!

"Come here," she said, smiling as she drew in the rope. "Tell me what you mean by going around with that woman—without my permission?"

In a voice betraying his annoyance, Watson replied sharply:

"You have no rights over me Senorita Rojas! I shall go about with anyone I like!"

Celinda grew pale. She had not expected that tone. But quickly she recovered herself, and imitating the young man's serious manner, she replied:

"Mr. Watson, I have over you this right at least. I do care about what happens to you, and I don't like to see you in bad company!"

Conquered by the girl's comic seriousness, young Watson burst out laughing; and then Celinda laughed too.

"You know how I am. . . I don't like to see you with that woman. Anyway she's too old for you. Swear to me that you'll do what I ask—or I won't let you go!"

Watson swore solemnly, with hand up-raised, making determined efforts to preserve his solemnity. Celinda loosened the rope and the two young people set off in the opposite direction to that taken by Elena and her party.

Since the day when the Frenchman had shown the marquesa the engineering works at the dam, somewhat boastfully exhibiting his authority over the workmen, Pirovani had felt that he had lost ground; and he was eager at any cost to regain it.

An inspiration came to him one morning as he leaned on his elbow over the railing of his balcony. Within half an hour one of the Italian's foreman was in conference with his employer.

A PIRATE of HEARTS

By BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "GILDED KISSES"

The Thrilling Love Story of a Boston Girl and the Husband Who Strayed

CHAPTER I.

Copyright, 1926, Johnston Features, Inc.

BABS dropped down into a chair and took out a vanity case and carefully rouged and powdered her face. This followed her declaration to Sylvia on the good looks of Ranny.

Then she leaned back, crossed her silk-stockinged legs and lit a cigarette.

Sylvia could scarcely believe her eyes as she watched her. She couldn't believe that this handsome, worldly creature was really the plain Babe Delano she had known at library school four years ago.

"Babe, if I hadn't been expecting you today I'd never have known you," she exclaimed. "You've changed so."

"All women have changed the last four or five years, Sylvia," she said slowly. "We've all taken to doing a lot of things that we shouldn't do—painting our faces, smoking cigarettes, taking a cocktail now and then and other things."

Sylvia shrugged her shoulders. "I don't smoke or drink," she answered, rather sharply, "I guess I'm old fashioned——" She frowned as she wondered what the "other things" were that Bab didn't mention. She wondered if one of them was falling in love with other women's husbands.

Ten minutes afterward she saw that that was exactly what Babs was doing.

When Ranny, in a clean shirt and his newest necktie, came down to supper she turned her chair toward his and smiled at him, flirtatiously.

"So I don't look like a photograph, Ranny?" she asked him so coyly that Sylvia could have slapped her face. She had always liked Babs very much, but suddenly she hated her as only a mild, gentle woman knows how to hate.

Ranny shook his head. "You have two eyes, one nose and one mouth," he said. "So has the face in the photograph. That's the only resemblance I can see."

Babs rose, with a silken swish of her skirts, and picked up her photograph where it was standing, propped against a silver vase. Suddenly she tore it in two, and threw the pieces down on the dancing flames in the grate.

Tries for Peter

"That picture was taken when I was twenty," she pouted, "and I declare it makes me look older than I am now, at twenty-four."

At twenty-four, Sylvia stared at her in blank amazement. She knew that Babs was thirty; if she was a day.

She saw then what had happened. Babs has fallen in love with Ranny, with the suddenness and recklessness of an old maid when she finally does fall in love—and she didn't want him to know that she was older than he was. Hence the fib about her age.

"Oh, the silly thing." Sylvia thought looking at her as she leaned toward Ranny with a wide smile on her mouth. She seemed almost to have forgotten that Sylvia was in the room.

Wheeled the tea wagon out into the kitchen. As she slipped out of the room, their chairs were drawn close together beside the fire, and their faces were turned toward each other as they talked freely.

While she washed the cups and plates, she could hear little bursts of laughter from Babs every now and then, and Ranny's deep voice saying things she couldn't hear. She wondered what they were talking about.

"I hope you're going to find me a beau," the new Babe was saying now, with a coy sidewise glance at Ranny, "I want you to introduce me to some lovely bachelor with lots of money."

Sylvia blushed. The only bachelor she knew was Peter Wilk. He had lots of money, too—but somehow, she knew that he wouldn't care much for Babs. However——

"Let me have a look at him, any way," said she, "Ask him to dinner tomorrow night, and I'll see whether I want him or not."

And so it was that Peter Wilk came back into Sylvia's life.

Peter came to dinner at the Little White House the next night.

It was the first time Sylvia had laid eyes on him for more than a year, and he seemed thinner and taller and more serious to her than ever before.

When she came downstairs and found him standing in front of the fire, he seemed curiously embarrassed. He said "How do you do?" to her as if she were a stranger, but his eyes were the eyes of an old friend and a good friend, just as they had always been.

They asked her how she had been this last year? And she smiled up into them, as if she wanted to tell him how happy she had been, and how happy she was now.

Babs Sees Peter's Love

"I've missed you, Peter, all this time," she said to him, and just then, Babs came into the room.

Babs had on a black chiffon dress that showed a great deal of her shoulders, and all of her arms. She filled the room with the odor of the perfume she used, and she talked every minute.

At the table she sat next to Peter. He had hurt his hand and it was bound up in gauze bandages, so she cut his meat for him, leaning so close to him that her hair brushed his cheek.

"You helpless baby," she said to him, after he had put one of these glances from under her lashes. "You need someone to take care of you. You are the most helpless thing in the world—you bachelors."

Peter grinned, and looked extremely ill at ease.

"You don't have to feel sorry for Peter, Babe," Sylvia told her sharply. "He has the loveliest sister in the world who takes such perfect care of him that he's never felt the need of taking a wife, who'd sew on his buttons for him, and put his clothes away in camphor balls."

Then she was sorry she had said it. For Peter gave her a quick look that made her realize that he still remembered that day in the woods when he begged her to marry him, and she had refused.

The worst of it is that Babs saw that look in his too.

"Your sister Wilk man is in love with you, just as Ranny said he was," she told Sylvia accusingly, as they were getting undressed for bed that night. "Long stand a chance with him when you're around."

There was bitterness in her voice. For what Babs Delano wanted more than anything was a husband—a rich husband. And Peter, who was rich was her idea of everything she would wish for.

"That's perfect nonsense, Babs," Sylvia answered sharply. "Peter's an old friend of mine, and nothing more. Don't get wild ideas into your head."

A week later the storm broke.

It was on Wednesday night. Peter had come over to play cards, at the Little White House.

At twelve o'clock the game was over, and Sylvia went out into the kitchen to make some sandwiches and coffee.

After a few minutes Peter got up and lounged out of the room.

Spies on Sylvia

He opened the door of Sylvia's little white and blue kitchen, and stepped inside. "Let me help you with those sandwiches," he said to her.

She shook her head at him, her face dead white. She was looking down at her fingers, all blood where she had cut them with the bread-knife she still held in her right hand.

He reached in his pocket for a clean handkerchief and began to bind it around the bleeding hand.

It was at that precise second that Babs Delano pushed open the door and looked in. She took a long look.

Without a sound she closed the door, and tiptoed back to the living room, where Ranny sat staring into the grate fire as he smoked. The smile on her face was most unbeautiful.

"My head and your wife are holding hands out in the kitchen," was all she said, but it was enough.

Ranny got up, put down his pipe slowly and carefully, and walked out of the room. He was so blind with his own sudden rage that he didn't see that Peter was bandaging Sylvia's hand. All he saw was that the two of them were standing very close together beside the kitchen table.

"Get out!" he said to Peter with a low growl like thunder in the distance. "Get out of my house!"

Peter looked up at him in blank astonishment.

"Well, just wait until I finish with Sylvia's hand," he said very quietly.

And then Ranny saw that they were not holding hands, after all.

"Huh! I beg your pardon, I thought you were fussing, Sylvia," he said grimly, and went out of the room.

But the seed of suspicion had been sown in his soul, just the same.

The next morning Sarah Wilk telephoned for Sylvia.

"I've got to talk to you, and I'm laid up with rheumatism, or I'd come over there," she groaned over the 'phone. "I won't keep you but ten minutes."

Sylvia left Ranny and Babs over their late breakfast and went to Sarah's house.

She found her, smelling of arnica and wintergreen oil, and groaning with her pain. "I feel like an old fool, sending for you this way Sylvy," she said, when Sylvia kissed her pink fat cheek, "but I've got to talk to you about Peter. You must leave him alone—you mustn't keep bothering him. Last night he came home and walked the floor for one solid hour after he'd been at your house."

Sylvia looked at her with unhappy eyes.

"What do you mean? That he still likes me?" she asked, and went on without waiting for an answer. "Oh, Sarah, what am I going to do—It would be foolish never to see Peter just because he once asked me to marry him. That was ages ago."

The chances were that she'd not see him again for a long time, anyway.

Subtle Lure of "The Different"

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

LONG hair is coming at last—honest! You'd better start growing it now if you want to be in the vanguard instead of bringing up the rear.

Do you know why it's coming? Because every girl gets tired of being a duplicate of every other girl! She grows tired of not giving herself and the rest of the world—especially masculine—a thrill. And certainly the delightful thrill, the newness, the daring, the cold breeze around the neck, the feeling that a thousand round eyes are staring at a body's head in a mixture of horror and admiration—certainly THAT thrill has gone out of bobbed hair. The comfort remains. But what is comfort to the girl who is tired of it?

And then, too, they whisper in Hollywood and New York that the gentlemen's eyes are straying to the distinctively different young lady with some real hair on her head that is not exactly like his own! And if they are—why that settles it!

I knew that when a famous picture star started to let hers grow in earnest the tide was turning. That when gentlemen began to prefer pony-tails a change was really in the wind. And both of those things are come to pass!

Now the word will be "switches—curls in bunches like sausages—braids—and WIGS."

It's almost dead-certain news! For the natural reason that Eve never did fail to go to extremes. If her head be like a chrysanthemum this year, when she grows tired of it being so—she will wear it as sleek as an egg! And when the lady boy haircut carries her, you may count upon it that she will swing back to false hair while she waits for her own to grow.

You'd better begin planning your own particular flair.

It isn't here yet—but it's on its way.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Queen Victoria's Letter to King of the Belgians

poor King of Denmark, but the incorporation of Schleswig must be done away with. The two great Powers, by taking the Schleswig question alone in their hands, have prevented the revolutionary movement from taking possession of the Duchy.

Queen Shows Resentment

Queen Victoria to Earl Russell.

OSBORNE, 15th Feb., 1864.—The Queen must observe that she does not require to be reminded of the honor of England, which touches her more nearly than anyone else.

But the Queen also knows what her responsibility is, as the Sovereign of this great country; and she could never forgive herself if, for imaginary interests (for she cannot see what real ones are involved in this question), or a supposed point of honor (for the honor of England is not engaged to maintain by arms an arrangement which was refused to guarantee, and which has unluckily led to consequences the very reverse of what was hoped for), she were to sanction measures which might lead to a European war, or unite France to take part in attacking Germany, thereby encouraging all her ambitious designs, and producing a conflagration all over Europe, which would probably end in general anarchy!

16th Feb.—This draft seems to the Queen to commit her Government too strongly to the Danish view of the question, and to encourage too much hope of material assistance from England.

The imputation also upon the motives of the German Powers seems impolitic and uncalled for.

Warships Ordered Home

The Duke of Somerset to Queen Victoria.

ADMIRALTY, 21st Feb., 1864.—The Duke of Somerset presents his humble duty to Your Majesty, and begs to state that it has been deemed advisable by the Cabinet that the Channel Squadron should be ordered home. As it appears not improbable that some hostile operations between Danish and German vessels may take place in the Channel or in the neighboring seas, it has been thought desirable that Your Majesty's ships of war should be at hand to protect British waters and to be available in case of any unforseen contingency should require their presence.

Queen Victoria to Earl Russell.

WINDSOR CASTLE, 22nd Feb., 1864.—The tenor of the telegrams sent this morning alarms the Queen very much. She is most anxious that the operations of the German Powers should be limited to the object first announced, and quite approves of strong, but not violent, representations being made to them on the subject. But equally strong representations should be made to the Danish Government of the impolicy, not to say folly, of the orders given to their cruisers—and of the expediency of consenting at once (if not to the evacuation of Schleswig, and an armistice) to the resumption of negotiations by entering into a conference upon pending hostilities.

She has seen with much concern the violent language used in Parliament, and regrets the general one-sided tone of our communications, as not calculated, she fears, to incline the German Powers to moderate counsels.

If indeed there had been any intention to attack Copenhagen, the state of affairs would have been different, and such an eventuality would have required the most serious attention of her Government; but as this is totally out of the question, the Queen expects that there will be no change in our present attitude.

She must also insist on no fresh proposals being sent by telegraph to Foreign Governments without her previous sanction.

Learns Power of Prayer

Queen Victoria to the King of the Belgians.

WINDSOR CASTLE,

Beloved Uncle—I am well nigh worn to nothing with vexation, distress and worry.

I long for quiet and peace, and to be enabled to dwell on the blessed future!

I never really realized the power of prayer till now! When in an agony of loneliness, grief, and despair, I kneel by that bed, where he left us, decked with flowers, and pray earnestly to be enabled to be courageous, patient, and calm, and to be guided by my darling to do what HE would wish, then, a calm seems to come over me, a certainty my anguish is seen and heard not in vain, and I feel lifted ABOVE this miserable earth of sorrows! It is only when one feels as though all were gone, all laid dreamed you, as I feel so often and so much during this terrible crisis, that one can truly appreciate the power and strength of prayer, and that one's faith rises with one's utter prostration of woe! But it is cruel, hard, and fearful, to live in such constant sorrow and anxiety!

I am very weak and shattered, and at night I am obliged to talk very little and generally to be read to after dinner, or I cannot sleep.

England's "Meddling"

The Crown Princess of Prussia to her mother, Queen Victoria.

BERLIN, 13th April, 1864.—The continual meddling and interfering of England in other peoples' affairs has become so ridiculous abroad, that it almost ceases to annoy.

But to an English heart it is no pleasant sight to see the dignity of one's country so compromised and let down—its influence so completely lost.

The highly pathetic, philanthropic, and virtuous tone in which all the statesmen against Prussia are made has something intensely ludicrous about it. The English would not like, if they were engaged in a war, to be dictated to in a pompous style, how they were to conduct it. Indeed I am sure they would not stand such interference. Why should we then be supposed to submit to it?

Earl Russell to Queen Victoria

FOREIGN OFFICE, 18th April, 1864.—Lord Palmerston and Lord Russell think it desirable to ask the Cabinet to advise that your Majesty should empower Lord Russell to ask the Conference at their meeting on Wednesday for an immediate armistice on the ground of present possession. If objected to by Denmark, no assistance to be afforded them; but if objected by Austria and Prussia, measures to be concerted with Russia and Sweden, and if possible with France, for sending the British Fleet to the Baltic with orders to wait for instructions when there.

Look First

The only quick-cooking oats with this flavor is "Quick Quaker"

FLAVOR is the all-important point in food. In oats it is probably more important than in any other.

That is why people who once taste the toasty richness of Quaker Oats are spoiled thereafter for all others.

Quaker flavor is unique, toasty and delightful. No other oats offers it to you. Some 50 years were spent perfecting it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamines and this "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

For your own sake, say "Quaker" when buying oats. Two kinds now at grocories: Quick Quaker (cooks in 3 to 5 minutes) and Quaker Oats as always.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when people are stocking up with camphor balls and tar paper and the moths are hunting new restaurants for the summer.

TEDDY won't be able to eat a la carte any longer.

WHEN fur coats start going into storage, the moths begin losing their best dining rooms.

ONE moth was starving to death in his next tuxedo was coming from.

FOR three months he hasn't eaten a thing but evening dresses. He's been on a diet.

ONE family of insects was so poor that they had to live on Chinese rugs.

THE mother said her children haven't tasted mink for two years.

ANOTHER moth almost died from famine. He made a mistake and got into a closet at the poorhouse.

FOOD got so scarce that he had to eat the fur off the cat.

HE used to get so hungry that he'd eat moth balls between meals.

HE dreamed of the days when he lived in a Fifth Avenue apartment where every wardrobe trunk was a delicatessen.

BUT nowadays a pair of running tights would seem like a banquet.

ONE moth was so fond of baggage that he used to go down to the station and met the porters.

HED start the evening with silk shirts and finish the night with pajamas.

Looking Ahead

By Percy Crosby

DAILY SHORT STORY

DOCTOR Millington's face was very grave as he came out of the bedroom. He looked at John Robelman and shook his head. They sat down together where they could talk without being heard in the next room.

"Your wife," said the doctor, "is in very bad shape. There is a danger, with her blood pressure, of cerebral hemorrhage. How much money have you got?"

"About five thousand, all told," answered John without hesitation, for Doctor Millington was an old friend of the family, and not one to be designing against his bank account.

"I'll tell you what you'd better do," the doctor said with an air of finality. "Get her up into the mountains at once. Go out to Denver. I have a friend there who will help you to get a little inexpensive cottage on the mountainside there. You ought to stay about six months. Eat only the plainest of foods, and see that she takes a long walk every day. Take her out for a walk in the morning, and then have her stay closely in the house all afternoon and be very quiet. You'd better leave the house yourself in the afternoon, so that she can have perfect rest and peace."

"But she'll never agree to it," insisted John. "In the first place she won't spend that much money. I've often wanted to lay off from work and take little trips, but she won't hear of it; she wants to save every cent that she can."

"She'll hear of it now," returned the doctor positively. "I told her that her very life depends upon following instructions. It won't cost over a thousand or so anyway; my bill will be very small and I shan't send it to you until you get back, and you needn't pay it until you get ready. There will be no medicine to get out there; just the altitude and the rest . . ."

It was finally arranged as the doctor ordered and John and Mathilda departed for Denver.

Once there Mathilda began to get better immediately. True she began losing weight right away, but she could spare some, and John was quite care-free in the afternoons, roaming about the mountainside with a .22 rifle under his arm, snapping at the smaller birds and sometimes spending an hour or so merely shooting at a mark.

After the first few days he went down into Denver proper and took in a picture show, or roamed about the streets simply amusing himself. It was the first vacation he had ever had since he had been married and he enjoyed it tremendously.

The third week that they were there Mathilda got so much better that she insisted upon John's wiring the doctor, to see if they might not now return.

"No use your loafing around here day in and day out; we're not saving anything and you're not making anything."

John dutifully wired the doctor, but the telegram that came back was disconcerting.

"By no means return for several months yet," it read, "do not be misled—your wife is in a serious condition."

This settled Mathilda for another three weeks; but at the end of that time she got restive again. John was as tanned as an Indian. He had gained twenty-five pounds, and had a ruddy glow of health that he had not experienced in twenty years. Mathilda, however, was restive. He ought to be back at work. They hadn't saved a cent since they had come to Denver. This time she called in a local physician. He examined her thoroughly, questioned her, and asked for time until tomorrow to render his decision on her condition. That night he wired her family physician back in Chicago, to confirm his own conclusions, and the next day he returned.

"Your condition," he told her, "is most grave; you mustn't think of returning to Chicago for another month at least." This held Mathilda for another thirty days, but at the end of that time nothing could longer hold her. John, however, was as anxious to return now as was she. He was surfeited with the mountain air. Hard as nails, younger by twenty years than he had been before coming. They returned and at once sent for the doctor. He again examined Mathilda, and this time he was more optimistic. "She's much better," he declared. "A month in the mountains yearly and she'll live to a ripe old age."

"Not feeling badly myself," John admitted. "In fact, I'm feeling better than I've felt in twenty years. I'm afraid you're going to lose money on me from now on; I won't be coming to you once a month any more with those headaches and everything that used to knock me out."

"No," agreed the doctor. "I guess that's right." He left with his little bag and went out to his waiting car. As he climbed in, Doctor Muhlman from down the street nailed him.

"Say, doc, my car's laid up for repairs; drive me down to Elm street on your way back to the office, will you?" He got in and they started off.

"Got a funny case over on Elm street," confided Doctor Muhlman, "maybe you can tell me what to do. Man there—and all the time—all he needs is a good rest and some fresh air and sunshine, but his wife's one of those women who think more or a savings account than they do of anything else on earth, and I can't get him to lay off; what would you do in a case like that?"

"Well," said Doctor Gleason, "I'll tell you. . . ." And he did.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

THE doctor had left and I was glad to know that there was nothing the matter with Bobby, except a regular, old-fashioned bilious attack such as all boys and girls are apt to get if they eat too much candy.

But, of course, he looked down Bobby's throat and examined his ears and poked his tummy and took his temperature and counted his pulse.

"Isn't it wonderful," said Bobby, "that we have blood running all around inside of us all the time?"

"It is, indeed," I answered, "but in ancient times people didn't know about it.

"It was not until 1578 that the man was born who was going to change the whole idea of the human body and solve a great mystery.

"It was then that William Harvey was born at Folkestone, England, and what a great work this little baby was to do when he grew to be a man!

"Now, at that time the schools in Italy were much better than the English schools of medicine which then existed.

"So off to Padua, Italy, young Harvey went to study at the school of medicine there. Afterwards he went to Bologna and Pisa and then came back to his own university in Cambridge, England.

"He had his degree as a doctor both from Padua and Cambridge. Then while he was in Italy he heard the great Galileo, the man who made the first telescope; and he had heard a lecture by a great Italian doctor, who had discovered that veins had valves which forced the blood in a certain direction.

"But up until this time the real fact that the heart contracts and that when it contracts it forces the blood into all parts of our body had been a complete mystery. It was this great William Harvey who proved it and changed the entire science of physiology. That is a study that teaches all about the human body.

"This great mystery solved, doctors were able to treat people for diseases and to cure many ills which before that had been impossible.

"So you see, Bobby, what a great work for the world William Harvey did. You can always remember his name as one of the great men of all times."

Bobby put his hand on his own little pulse and said:

"Doctor Harvey must have been a very smart man."

Itching, painful rash on hand yields to Resinol

Huntington, L. I., N. Y., Dec. 20: —"I want to tell you what your Resinol Ointment has done for me. Some time ago, I had a red, scaly rash between my fingers that came from using too much harsh soap and soap powder. It itched badly, especially at night. I am a housekeeper and every time I had to put my hands in water the pain was intense. One evening I read a Resinol advertisement in the paper and decided to buy a jar. I did and after I had used it for about two months, my trouble was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Ward Chapman, R. F. D. No. 1, Box G.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

LOVE is not over, until the kiss that was once a thrilling temptation becomes a moral obligation.

A wise man is one who knows when to feed a woman sweet lies covered with hot-fudge sauce, and when she will swallow nothing but the plain, unsugared truth.

If a car is prettily painted and upholstered and has a vanity-case, a woman never stops to ask the salesman what sort of thing it has under the hood; but then, that's the principle, dear heart, by which most men pick out a wife!

Asking a young man to give up cigarettes, petting and golf, is practically asking him to give up his whole life-work, these days.

When a man feels himself falling in love, if he would only "let go," and enjoy the sensation as a woman does, he would discover that marriage, itself either, is SO much easier to take when you don't struggle against it!

Once a vamp has succeeded in making a dent in a man's heart, it is not very hard to make a crack in his conscience.

After marriage a man talks only in grunts and monosyllables; but at that, it's sort of comforting, just to have something alive sitting around the house, evenings.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

When the winds fail, take to the oars.

What you do not want is dear at a farthing.

You cannot cure every ill with the same medicine. Be what you seem to be.

Subdue circumstances to yourself, not yourself to circumstances.

The least force suffices to break what is already cracked.

That which is to be established once for all should be considered long.

The only sure part of a tranquil life is through virtue.

No occupation implants so speedy and effective a love of peace as a country life.

Oh life, how long to the wretched how short to the happy!

There is but one way to enter this life, but the gates of death are without number.

We pass our lives in doing what we ought not and leaving undone what we should do.

He that takes too great a leap falls into the ditch.

We ought to be more offended at extravagant praise than injuries.

Association with the wicked corrupts good manners.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

U. S. District Attorney Buckner of New York, appearing before the Senatorial investigators, urges that the Volstead law be modified to permit each State to define the beverages it considers non-intoxicating.

This is a fine idea and should be given a trial.

Tourist traffic could be stimulated by such appeals as these:

COME TO CALIFORNIA FOR NICE, FRESH, LEGAL WHISKEY

IOWA WHERE YOU MAY DRINK EMBALMING FLUID THE REST OF YOUR LIFE

ARIZONA WHERE MEN ARE MEN AND FERMENTED CACTUS JUICE FLOWS FREE

ILLINOIS THE HAIR OIL STATE

In other words, Prosecutor Buckner would grant every community the right to nominate its own poison.

Adam Scoffiaw's Journal

Early up and this day get word that my young Olde English Sheepe Dogge puppy, Molly Sykes, hath been put on the steam train at Colorado Springs and will arrive at two of the clock on Sunday. So to the scullery and busk my saucy a kiss, and she mightily puzzled to know what put me in such high spirits, Lord! 'Twas all I could do to holde my tongue from telling her she to have a new pooch instead of the bedroom set she bleat for so prettily. So to the printery by coach and can not keep from looking at my watch all day to see how slow the time doth pass.

Adam Scoffiaw's Journal

Lay long abed saturate with sleep, and this day did dream a sweet dream, to wit: That my turtledove did pine for a chinchilla coat and bleat until I did promise to busk it for her, but on going to the market place did instead buy a pair of brave rabbits and fetch them home and tell my hen-partridge she can raise rabbits and make her a coat from the pelts, and she was mightie happy and proud. But on waking, when I did tell her the dream, my saucy smiled, saying, I am, e'en in sleep, a sly and selfish nibbering. So to the printery.

VOICING THE GREAT VOICE OF DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

Sandy MacFarlane is appearing at WEEI tonight in another program of Scotch song. Sandy comes on at 8:30.

SHOEMAKERS TO SING EARLIER

Refuting the old adage "A shoemaker should stick to his last," the Shoemakers Quartet will again be heard from WBZ tonight. Their program will be sent out at 9 o'clock, however, instead of 9:30 p. m.

Edward J. McEnelly and his Victor Recording Orchestra broadcasting direct from Cook's Butterfly Ballroom at Springfield, will present a program at 8 o'clock. Although the efforts of this orchestra usually tend to music of the dance variety, tonight's program features concert music, in which these musicians also appear to advantage.

PLAN TO SPEED RADIO CONTROL

Washington, April 23 (A.P.).—Renewed efforts to pass radio legislation at this session will be made by Senate leaders in order that broadcasting, now virtually unregulated, may be brought under government control.

The recent Chicago court decision holding that the Commerce Department has not the authority under existing law to assign wave lengths or require division of time in broadcasting, has made passage of a radio control bill urgent, in the opinion of Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican leader, and Chairman Watson of the interstatec commerce committee, which has radio legislation under consideration.

Chairman Watson probably will call his committee together in the next few days to consider the Dill bill, which would create an independent radio control commission.

There appears to be little doubt that any measure the Senate committee approves will contain a provision for a regulatory commission rather than placing control under the the commerce department. The House, on the other hand, already has passed the White bill, which would leave regulation in the hands of the department.

The Dill bill would create a commission of three appointed by the President for five-year terms, empowered to revoke broadcasting licenses, prevent a monopoly of the air and prevent stations from charging unjust and discriminatory rates for the use of their facilities. It would bring "chain broadcasting" under strict control and establish a penalty for slander over the radio.

NEWEST DEVICE IN PHONE PLUG

A new type of phone plug has made its appearance on the market, which is sure to find favor with many fans. It is slightly larger than the conventional plug, but the reason for this is because it contains a device for smoothing out the tone quality of loudspeakers.

It has been apparent for some time that it would soon be necessary to improve the tone quality of the average radio set, especially if it were to hold a place in any music lover's home.

This has been accomplished to a certain extent by the adoption of "high quality" amplifying transformers and the use of power tubes.

Nothing has been attempted thus far in the direction of improving loud speakers. About the only course left for the fan was to buy a better speaker.

This new "Claro-Plug," as it is called by the manufacturers, it is claimed to greatly improve the performance of the average speaker. Annoying scraping sounds in speakers are said to be completely eliminated, while the reproducing range is broadened to include the deep bass and high notes.

The plug is four inches long and one and one-half inches wide. No wires or adjustments are necessary. It is so designed that it can be used on sets having either jacks or binding posts. The construction has been simplified so that it can be attached by anyone.

"TIGER'S" GRANDSON MUST QUIT AMERICA

Seattle, April 23 (A.P.).—Georges Ferdinand Louis Andre Gatineau, grandson of Georges Clemenceau, "The Tiger" of France, will be returned to his country by the Federal government if he fails to raise funds for his passage to the Far East by Wednesday.

Gatineau entered the United States at New Orleans two years ago, on a two weeks' visitor's permit. He was prominent in society here until he was detained February 6 on a bad check investigation.

STEWART TO BE SENT TO THE DEATH HOUSE

Richard Stewart, alias Frank Johnson, will arrive at the death house in State Prison late today. Stewart is condemned to die in the chair the week of May 3 unless efforts to have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment are successful. Stewart will be the twenty-sixth man electrocuted in the State.

He was convicted of the murder of William James in Wilmington last August. James' body was found in a well.

FRENCH JEER AND HISS "LA CARCASSE"

Paris, April 23 (A.P.).—Jeers, hisses and groans greeted the premiere of a play, "La Carcasse" at the Comedie Francaise. So tumultuous was the demonstration by those who objected to the play as being an insult to the army that twice the curtain had to be lowered. It is asserted that the management is considering its withdrawal.

M. De Fernady, who had the leading role, pleaded with the audience to let the play go on. He said he was the son and grandson of soldiers and that he would not have consented to appear in any production he thought was attacking the honor of the army.

HINDUS-MOSLEMS KEEP UP WAR IN CALCUTTA

Calcutta, British India, April 23 (A.P.).—Notwithstanding police precautions, further rioting took place today between Hindus and Moslems in the Canning street area. The casualties thus far reported were two men, all the shops in the neighborhood closed during the disturbance and business was at a standstill.

They Mock Us in Europe

LET Them. But Let Us Stay OUT

OUR GOOD CANADIAN FRIENDS PRINT THIS IN THE MONTREAL DAILY STAR. IT DOESN'T HURT OUR FEELINGS. THE WORLD COURT WOULD.

Europe alternately borrows money of old Uncle Sam and reviles and mocks him.

We are told in one breath "Won't you please send over a few billions for our industries?" And the next moment we are told that we are Shylocks, that the dollar is our GOD, that we came into the war too late, and were worth nothing after we got into it.

It is hard to please Europe, either with our conduct or our money, although we sent them ten billions when they were in trouble, and have lent them thirteen billions more for their businesses of various kinds since the war ended.

European papers show Uncle Sam as keeper of a pawnshop, with three golden balls hanging above the door, and a sign saying he will lend only on gold, or on men's souls, etc.

Poor, innocent Uncle Sam doesn't want to be BOTHERED with responsibility for the souls of Europeans or with their financial troubles, either.

If he and those that represent him in Washington will only know enough to stay here in America, attend to his business HERE, keep out of League of Nations and World Court nonsense, and attend to our own affairs, the average American, AND THE SPIRIT OF GEORGE WASHINGTON, will be very grateful.

Even our good friends in Canada, who are more American than British, although they don't know it, think it necessary to remind Uncle Sam pictorially of his shortcomings. This picture, from the Montreal Daily Star, shows Uncle Sam going into the World Court, MOST RIDICULOUSLY, with all sorts of contraptions to protect himself.

He has his "amendment rope reaching to Washington" so that he can be pulled back swiftly. He has his fire-escape, life-preserver, umbrella, barbed-wire fence around him.

And underneath the picture the Daily Star prints this:

"ENTER UNCLE SAMUEL"

"The modern Pilgrim's Progress; or, TIMID arrives at the gate."

Uncle Sam didn't look especially "TIMID" to our Canadian-European brothers in the war when we sent three million men over there and ten billions of dollars.

However, it is natural to be friendly when you are frightened, ungrateful and bitter unless you get all you want, when your fear is over.

What Europe or Canada says or prints doesn't interest us. All we ask is that other nations be kind enough to attend to THEIR business while we attend to OURS.

Europeans need only to stop cutting each other's throats and have a little confidence in each other. This country doesn't intend to finance the next war or Europe's present military preparations.

ONCE WAS ENOUGH! NEVER AGAIN.

A Good Day's Work

By the Massachusetts Senate

By a vote of 9 to 19, the Massachusetts Senate has gone on record in favor of extending for another year the excellent system whereby district judges may be summoned for temporary service in the Superior Courts of the Commonwealth.

Most of the opposition to the extension of this arrangement comes from a small but well organized group of local lawyers who specialize in the defense of alleged criminals. These specialists would prefer to defend their clients before judges inexperienced in the trial of criminal cases.

The best district judges know how to try criminal cases. They are on to the curves of legal specialists in the defense of alleged criminals. For that reason a good district judge can render most useful service in the Superior Courts in the trial of criminal cases.

Thanks to the leadership of Senator Eben S. Draper, of Hopedale, and other Senators who stood with him, Massachusetts will have the assistance, for another year at least, of district judges, whom the chief justices of the Superior Courts of Massachusetts see fit to call upon for temporary service in those tribunals.

Blocking the schemes of legal specialists in defense of alleged criminals is a good day's work for the Massachusetts Senate.

FUNDAMENTAL NEED OF KINDNESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE older I grow the more I become convinced of the validity of one of my earlier beliefs.

Namely, that the fundamental need of this world is kindness.

Everyone is thirsting for understanding, for sympathy, for the refreshing touch of a kindly heart.

The yearning may be covered up by a show of cleverness, sophistry or cynicism, but sooner or later, as Amiel so beautifully describes it, "just when one has succeeded in deadening feeling by work or amusement, all of a sudden the heart, solitary captive that it is, sends a cry from its prison depths, a cry which shakes to its foundations the whole surrounding edifice."

It is the cry for sympathy and kindness.

Those who are just kindly have their place in the world.

The other evening I was reading again the story of those turbulent times of Charles I. in England.

Out of the mass of picturesque self-seekers an unknown private soldier stands out in my memory.

As the King was led out to his death, a private soldier standing near the door said, in pity, "God bless you, Sir." An officer knocked him down.

No matter how black the crimes of the condemned man, nor how just the decree, that private soldier showed a kindness of nature in the face of popular disapproval that raised him high above the ruck of his surroundings.

I have often wondered what his name was.

Men of the kindly heart have included some of the greatest names of history.

Leonardo da Vinci, the universal genius of Italy, was in the habit of buying caged birds to have the pleasure of giving them their freedom.

St. Francis of Assisi used to say, "If I could only be presented to the emperor I would pray him, for the love of God and of me, to issue an edict prohibiting anyone from catching or imprisoning my sisters the larks, and ordering that all who have oxen or asses should at Christmas time feed them particularly well."

Pythagoras, the noble-minded Greek teacher, is said to have one day purchased from fishermen the fish in their nets in order to have the joy of freeing them.

St. James of Venice was accustomed to buy and release birds which Italian boys played with by attaching strings to their legs and pulling them back to earth when they began to fly.

Compassion for the unfortunate, however humble, is the mark of a superior soul.

It is the power of the Golden Rule applied to the every day.

When Lincoln's mother was dying in her frontier cabin she put her hand on little Abe's head and told him always to "be kind to his father and sister."

There is more than an accidental relationship between the character of the greatest man of our age and the fact that "being kind" was the only request of his dying mother.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU have heard of that sick space of waters which men call the Sargasso Sea.

There all the waves fall limp, like beaten things. The sparkle and the jade green glory dull and fade. And that which yesterday was quick, leaping salt becomes stagnant, scummy fluid, thick with weeds.

The very winds are stricken in their flight. They faint within the brooding air. Their heart is broken in them.

And the clouds which rolled like dreams above the far horizon's rim, wither like mist beneath the ugly sun.

It is not good, that sick Sargasso Sea. It is not good for water or men to pass that way. And yet all water sooner or later comes to that drab place, and lingers for a while before it's freed.

And men come to it, too.

Sooner or later the bright current of our lives come to a sudden darkening and halt.

Then the clear waters of our happiness grow thick and foul with weariness and fear.

Salt Goes Out

We are no longer eager or alert. The salt goes from our thoughts and our desires.

And all the tall, bright dreams toward which we steered our lives, are blotted out by our indifference.

Sometimes we know what hurt has brought us to this place—what loss or treachery or sickening of our souls. But oftener we cannot see how it has come to pass. We only know our life has fallen limp, and we who once were filled with fury and delight, are now entangled in a drifting scum of hopelessness.

It comes that way so often to good wives whom all the world deem lucky and content. Or to those men of middle age, who seem most settled and most prosperous.

It comes to youngsters, too. In those fine years which lie between fifteen and twenty-five, when everything is taken on the quick, and hot dreams alternate with weakness and despair. Young life lags often in the dull Sargasso Sea.

And Age is caught within its blackest, thickest depths where float the rotting hulks of dead dreams and desires.

All this is certain nor can man stay the course. But this is also true: The life that comes to such a dreary pause will in its time go free again.

As surely as the salt waves halt their pace, and thicken for a while in stagnant calm, then quicken to some hidden, briny urge and join the cleansing current in which once they flowed.

Lie Stagnant

So surely do our soul streams halt their course—lie stagnant for a time without an aim—then slowly quicken to some secret call and presently are on their way again, stronger and fresher, to their place within the sea.

I've written this for YOU, today my friend. For YOU entangled in your Sargasso Sea.

I do not know what makes that tangling scum—Whether it's sin, or pain, or bitter loneliness, or self distruct or hatred of a foe, or the great loss of someone you have loved—

But this I KNOW for I have been there, too—

I KNOW that some day you will be set free—

That some day you will quicken to a strong, free urge—

And feel your life swing back into the sea—and hear the hungry clamor of the gulls again—and see the dream clouds gather, white and tall—and leap to throw yourself upon the wind!

EVERYONE HAS FAULTS; SO HAVE YOU

Often you have been disappointed in those in whom you had great confidence. You find yourself wondering if the really sincere people exist at all.

Have you met so much deceitfulness that you are hardened to the advances which anyone might make in the way of friendliness or deeper feeling?

Perhaps you have been unfortunate in those you trusted.

You are losing a lot of beauty and happiness by steeling yourself against everybody.

The majority of people are wholesome, right-minded and sincere.

Everyone has faults and so have you.

No one is ideal in word, thought and deed at all times.

But most folks are good, sympathetic and reliable.

Don't let sad experience make you condemn all mankind.

Your friends are human, some are selfish, some are weak. So are you, in certain respects.

Human happiness would be all if we lost faith in humanity in general.

Lord Reading Honored

Lord Reading's new title of Marquis, the second title in the British peerage, is the highest ever attained by an Englishman of the Jewish race. Even the great Benjamin Disraeli, Prime Minister and novelist, was only Earl of Beaconsfield.

As Rufus Isaacs, Lord Reading first attained distinction as a lawyer. He was raised to the peerage when he became Lord Chief Justice of England, a position from which he was drafted to diplomatic and viceregal work.

The drift of distinguished Jews to the bench has not been so marked in England as in the United States. In this country the roll of great Jewish judges is a long as well as a brilliant one, in which respect it simply parallels the experience of American Jews in other professions and callings.

Women and Logic

That women can be logical as well as emotional was proved by the National League of Women Voters. Its policy is educational and non-partisan, but certain ardent dry wanted it to jump to a conclusion against any modification of the Volstead act.

Even so sane a member as the league's founder, Mrs. Catt, urged the plunge into prohibition partisanship. The emotional appeal was presented powerfully by distinguished women, but the vote to stay scientific was greater than 2 to 1.

On the plane of finding and facing facts such an organization has an almost unique field of usefulness, which mere emotionalism would soon forfeit.

Bonnets in the Ring

"Ma" Ferguson announces that she will be a candidate for re-election; so does Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, our other woman executive.

Both women were elected largely on the basis of their husbands' past—"Ma" to vindicate the former Governor, her husband, and Mrs. Ross to fill out the term left vacant by the death of her husband, the Wyoming executive.

But both have demonstrated that women are capable of holding high political offices.

In the coming election they will stand on their own feet and upon their own records.

From now on bonnets will be as familiar to the ring of politics as will high hats and derbies.

Last of Cattle Barons

In Colorado the other day "the last of the feudal barons of the West" passed away.

He is said to have begun as a barefoot, half-naked orphan boy who herded sheep on the high Sangre de Cristo range in the days when war parties of Navajos, Apaches and Comanches harried the Spanish settlements on the Rio Grande.

He ended by directing the economic activity of a whole valley. He became virtual ruler of five thousand people and a domain as large as a European kingdom.

He was a connecting link between an era that has passed and the present.

His type is rapidly disappearing. The position he held could not be attained today.
